4 This is an interview of Stephanie Dobitsch conducted by the House Select 5 Committee to Investigate the January 6th Attack on the United States Capitol pursuant to 6 House Resolution 503.

7 Ms. Dobitsch, could you please state your full name and spell your last name for 8 the record?

8

9 Ms. Dobitsch. Good morning, everyone. My name is Stephanie Dobitsch, 10 D-o-b-i-t-s-c-h.

11 [REDACTED] And I'm going to introduce everyone in the room today for the 12 record. We'll start with my colleagues. I'll have the folks in the room introduce 13 themselves.

14 [REDACTED] Hi, this is [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Good 15 morning.

16 [REDACTED] Good morning, this is [REDACTED], an investigative counsel with 17 the select committee.

18 [REDACTED] I do anticipate Senior Investigative Counsel [REDACTED]
19 will be joining us at some point, for the record. And I also see present with us virtually 20 from the select committee is [REDACTED], investigator.

21 Could we have on your end, Ms. Dobitsch, any counsel present virtually?

21

22 Ms. Rapoport. Hi, this is Victoria Rapoport from DHS, as you see, and we also 23 have Hilary Ledwell, who's joining us virtually.

23

24 [REDACTED] Did I get three names? So I see two of you on the screen.

24

25 Ms. Rapoport. This is Victoria Rapoport from counsel's office, and we have some colleagues from our Office of Legislative Affairs. And two of the briefers from the 1 afternoon are joining us here as well.

2 [REDACTED] Sometimes the court reporters ask that if -- I think if they're on 3 camera or if there's even a possibility they might speak, that they'd like the names to be 4 on the record. Is that possible?

5 Ms. Rapoport. Sure. Do you guys want to introduce yourselves?

6 Mr. Dunlap. Yeah. Hi, it's James Dunlap. I am the director for 7 counterterrorism here at I&A.

8 Ms. Peterson. Good afternoon. My name is Michelle Peterson, and I am an 9 executive officer in the DUIEO office.

10 Ms. Rapoport. And OLA, please.

11 Mr. Lamote. Jason Lamote, L-a-m-o-t-e, with the Office of Legislative Affairs.

12 Ms. Lynum. And Kara Lynum -- K-a-r-a, last name Lynum, L-y-n-u-m -- with the 13 DHS Office of Legislative Affairs.

14 Ms. Rapoport. And for my spelling, it's Victoria, and last name is Rapoport, 15 R-a-p-o-p-o-r-t.

16 [REDACTED] Thank you so much.

17 And you've already mentioned Hilary Ledwell. You know, if she wants to speak, 18 if she would just put on her camera. But, obviously, she doesn't need to if she's not 19 speaking.

20 This will be a staff-led interview, and members, of course, may choose to also ask 21 questions if any join the call.

22 My name is [REDACTED], and I'm an investigative counsel for the select 23 committee.

24 Before we begin, I'd like to describe a few ground rules. There is an official 25 reporter transcribing the record of this interview. Please wait until each question is

1 completed before you begin your response, and we will try to wait until your response is 2 complete before we ask our next question. The stenographer cannot record nonverbal
3 responses, such as shaking your head, so it is important that you answer each question
4 with an audible, verbal response.

5 We ask that you provide complete answers based on your best recollection. If 6 the question is not clear, please ask for clarification. If you do not know the answer, 7 please simply say so.

8 I also want to remind you, as we do with every witness, that it is unlawful to 9 deliberately provide false information to Congress. And you will have an opportunity to 10 review the transcript once one is prepared.

11 Let's begin, if I may, by asking you to briefly describe your professional experience
12 leading up to and through your current position.

13 Ms. Rapoport. I'm sorry, Robin, can I just make a quick statement for the record 14 before we begin with questions?

15 [REDACTED] Of course. No problem. Go ahead.

16 Ms. Rapoport. [REDACTED], the Department has made available to the committee, 17 consistent with requests from the chairman, information and records that the 18 Department would not publicly release. This includes information and records covered
19 under the Privacy Act, personnel, and other personal privacy information, for official use 20 only, intelligence and law enforcement sensitive records, and raw intelligence 21 information.

22 While the Department has made this information and records available to the 23 committee, the Department continues to assert that such information and records 24 provided to the committee and any discussion of such information or records during the 25 course of the transcribed interview is not intended for public disclosure.

1 DHS is not waiving any protection, and for the purpose of the -- the purposes of 2 administrative efficiency, and to promote constructive dialogue during the transcribed
3 interview, is making this assertion at the outset of the transcribed interview to preserve
4 all assertions of protection from public release or disclosure over information or records
5 used or discussed during the transcribed interview.

6 The transcript and any attachments are protected from further dissemination to 7 the same extent as the documents and information they are based on. Please consult 8 with the Department prior to any public release or disclosure.

9 Thank you.

10 [REDACTED] Thank you, Ms. Rapoport.

11 EXAMINATION

12 BY [REDACTED]:

13 Q So I will, for the record, I'll just repeat the question for you, Ms. Dobitsch.
14 Can you or may you briefly describe your professional experience leading up to and 15 through your current position.

16 A Thank you. I have been in the intelligence community for about 15 years.
17 Prior to that, I was in the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, where I did military 18 intelligence. I joined DHS in 2019. Most of my experience focuses on Middle East and 19 North Africa, with a specific focus on counterterrorism issues.

20 Q Can you just run through, you know, the different positions that you had 21 through DHS?

22 A When I joined DHS in 2019, I first served as the counterterrorism mission
23 manager in Intelligence Enterprise Operation. And in May of 2020, I was asked to fleet
24 up as the acting deputy under secretary for Intelligence Enterprise Operation. I
25 transitioned permanently to that position in January of 2021.

1 Q Okay. And is that your current title?

2 A Yes, sir.

3 Q All righty. Does that division, the intelligence division and enterprise, does 4 that have an acronym?

5 A It's commonly referred to as DUIEO, Deputy Undersecretary for Intelligence
6 Enterprise Operation, or IEO.

7 Q IEO. Okay. Was that your title over the summer of 2020?

8 A I was in the acting capacity, but that was my title.

9 Q Right. What about on January 6th, 2021, were you still acting at that 10 point?

11 A Yes, sir.

12 Q All righty. Did you at any point serve temporarily in a higher capacity than 13 the deputy under secretary?

14 A No.

15 Q Can you please just describe for us what you do as the deputy under 16 secretary, what is your job description?

17 A I lead most of the Office of Intelligence and Analysis intelligence functions, to 18 include our collections capabilities both over HUMINT and open source collection. I also 19 oversee our eight mission centers, five of which are substantive: the Transnational 20 Organized Crime Mission Center, Counterterrorism Mission Center, Counterintelligence
21 Mission Center, Economic Security Mission Center, and our Cybersecurity Mission Center, 22 as well as three support elements: our Homeland Identities, Exploitation, Targeting 23 Center; our Field Operations Division, which includes our individuals deployed throughout 24 the U.S.; and our Current and Emerging Threats Center. I also oversee our analytic 25 production.

1 Q Who was your direct supervisor over the summer of 2020?

2 A I recall that my direct supervisor was Mr. Brian Murphy and Mr. Horace Jen.

3 Q And could you just tell us their positions at the time?

4 A In the summer of 2020, Horace Jen served as the acting principal deputy 5 under secretary for Intelligence and Analysis, and Mr. Brian Murphy served as the Senior 6 Official Performing the Duties of the Under Secretary.

7 Q Is it fair to say that sort of hierarchy is Mr. Murphy first, and then the name
8 you gave us previously, which I'm already blanking on, and then you? Is that the 9 hierarchy?

10 A Yes, sir. Brian Murphy, Horace Jen, then myself.

11 Q Thank you so much.

12 And who was your or what was the chain of supervision your direct supervisor, on 13 January 6th of 2021?

14 A I'm unsure of the exact positions at the time. [REDACTED] was the 15 Senior Official Performing the Duties of the Under Secretary. And I believe, but I can't 16 recall specifically, whether or not Melissa Smislova was the acting principal deputy under 17 secretary at the time. I believe she was.

18 Q If she wasn't, who would be? Is it between two people, or was -- are you 19 thinking that that position might have been unfilled at that time?

20 A It was either she was in the acting capacity or it was unfilled. But I do 21 believe she was in the acting capacity during that time.

22 Q And can you tell me today the sort of, again, the hierarchy of who's your 23 direct supervisor and then who serves above that?

24 A Currently, Melissa Smislova serves as the Senior Official Performing the 25 Duties of the Under Secretary. The Principal Deputy position is vacant. And I serve in a

1 deputy under secretary position.

2 Q What does -- and I don't think we've actually said it on the record -- the 3 Office of Intelligence and Analysis, which we'll go on to say obviously called I&A -- what 4 does I&A do generally? What is its mission?

5 A I&A serves a unique role in the Department and in the intelligence
6 community. We really focus three -- on three primary missions. The first is unbridging
7 the intelligence community and State and local, Tribal territorial and private sector
8 partners. We ensure that nationwide bidirectional information sharing on homeland
9 threat occurs, and then we provide a variety of intelligence support to those State and 10 local partners.

11 Beyond that, we produce tailored analysis for our Homeland Security
12 stakeholders. We collect and analyze information, including DHS holdings, to address 13 intelligence requirements of DHS, our Federal partners, and our State, local, Tribal, and 14 territorial and private sector customers. And this spans the full spectrum of threat to 15 the homeland, including cyber, terrorism, malign influence activity, transit border threats,
16 and economic security threats. And we strive to put out our analysis at the unclassified
17 and secret level to deliver to the widest group of Homeland Security stakeholders.

18 Lastly, we serve as a nexus between DHS and the intelligence community, bringing 19 what information and intelligence the DHS intelligence network can bring to bear on 20 national security efforts and threats, to include providing data analytics, tool, techniques,
21 and solutions to enable the Department and the intelligence community to accomplish 22 our national security and intelligence mission.

23 Q It is a member of the intelligence community, correct?

24 A Yes.

25 Q What is its relationship, if any, with the fusion centers across the country?

1           A     I&A enables the fusion centers by supporting their intelligence efforts. We 2     primarily rely on our staff that are deployed throughout the fusion centers to enable the 3     full spectrum of the intelligence cycle, to include collection analysis and information 4     sharing.

5           Q     What does the Current and Emerging Threats Center do, and how does it fit
6     within the structure of I&A?

7           A     The Current and Emerging Threats Center, known as CETC, reports to me as 8     one of the eight mission centers that fall under my purview. The Current and Emerging 9     Threats Centers -- Center has three main functions, the first being responsible for 10    managing requests for information from the full spectrum of our stakeholders and 11    partners, to include from the intelligence community, State and local partners in the 12    Department. Their second primary focus is serving as a watch function, ensuring broad 13    situational awareness among our partners and our senior leadership on new and 14    emerging threats. And their third function is leading I&A open source intelligence 15    collection activities.

16          Q     So is it -- is Open Source Collection Operations -- and I'll need you to 17    pronounce, I guess, the acronym for me -- does that fall under CETC? And how does it, 18    the open source collection operations, what does it do? Right. What is its mission?

19          A     So the Open Source Collection Operations branch, or OSCO, is a branch in 20    the Current and Emerging Threats Center. Its mission is to drive intelligence collection 21    derived from publicly available information on key collection requirements and 22    intelligence gaps determined by our analysts in the IC to help us better understand the 23    threats to the homeland.

24          Q     What does the Counterterrorism Mission Center do, and is that structurally
25    also one of the eight mission centers under CETC?

1           A    So CETC is one of the eight that falls under me. It's separate. The 2 Counterterrorism Mission Center is equal, as it relates to being on the organizational 3 structure. So they're each -- there are two of the eight mission centers that I oversee.
4 The Counterterrorism Mission Center, also known as CTMC, drives primarily collection
5 and analysis on the full spectrum of counterterrorism threats facing the homeland.

6           Q    Thank you for that clarification. I misspoke.

7           And, lastly, can you tell me what the Field Operations Division does and, again,
8 where it fits within the structure?

9           A    The Field Operations Division, or FOD, is the third of eight mission centers
10 that I oversee. Their primary mission is to enable our Homeland Security stakeholders in 11 the field, focused on the full intelligence cycle, to include collection, analysis, and 12 dissemination of intelligence to the partners, as well as engaging in association and other
13 engagement meetings to, again, maintain strong, robust relationships with the State, 14 local, Tribal, territorial, and private sector partners.

15          Q    In your role, does raw specific intelligence come across your desk? Is it 16 elevated to your level regularly?

17          A    I regularly see disseminated raw intelligence collection once it's serialized.
18 I do not regularly view raw intelligence collection before it is officially disseminated and 19 serialized.

20          Q    Does that mean that it's -- you see the analysis as well or -- you see the raw 21 intelligence as part of an analytical product, is that typically how it comes across your 22 desk?

23          A    No. I review both raw and finished intelligence as it relates to all threats to 24 the homeland.

25          Q    Is that by policy and procedure? So if something is going to be

1 disseminated in an analytical product, do you ensure to both review the product and the 2 underlying raw intelligence yourself?

3 A No.

4 Q Okay. Can you explain that to me then, how -- under what situation you'll 5 look at the raw intelligence apart from the analytical product?

6 A I look at raw intelligence once it is serialized and disseminated to customers.
7 So after it's finished and completed, just as I look at analysis in our finished intelligence
8 production primarily after it is reviewed, disseminated, and completed.

9 Q I see. So it could be disseminated just raw without any sort of analysis
10 attached to it. And in that case, if it is being shared externally, you will have reviewed it.
11 Is that right?

12 A I do not review raw intelligence before it's disseminated.

13 Q Okay. I think I'm having issues understanding. Well, let me ask you this.
14 What level of --

15 A I am not part of the review process before raw intelligence is formally 16 disseminated. I read it as a customer after it's disseminated.

17 Q Got it. I see. The difference -- and it's easier for me if you distinguish, 18 when you're making a distinction with me, what part of the sentence you're 19 distinguishing. So it's the before is the part that you were in disagreement. It's you 20 review it, but you review it afterward, after the dissemination.

21 A Once it's disseminated, yes.

22 Q Thank you.

23 What level of involvement -- drafting, reviewing, approving -- do you play in the 24 production of or creation of intelligence products?

25 A Can you clarify what type of intelligence? Are we talking about raw

1 intelligence or finished intelligence?

2 Q Let's do finished intelligence.

3 A I do not play a role in the drafting, reviewing, or publication of finished
4 intelligence products. I have the designation that I formally approve those products in 5 our policies, but that duty is delegated primarily to my office of the research director, 6 which is a senior leader who focuses primarily on reviewing and disseminating those 7 products.

8 I sometimes review products when they are of a high profile or a high visibility 9 nature, meaning that there's a significant or imminent threat, or in a case where we 10 might have some reduced staffing that requires my support to help them provide that 11 review. But on a day-to-day basis, I typically do not review finished intelligence 12 products before they are disseminated.

13 Q Just to clarify, those exceptional circumstances that you listed for me, those 14 would be reviewing before dissemination. Is that correct?

15 A Yes.

16 Q This relationship that you've just described for us how regularly you see, you
17 know, raw intelligence that is being disseminated and then how regularly you have either 18 eyes or review or preapproval on intelligence products, is it -- did it stay the same, in 19 essence, throughout your tenure, from the summer of 2020 through January 6th to 20 today?

21 A I almost never review or see raw intelligence before it's formally 22 disseminated. Between the summer of 2020 and shortly after 6 January, I reviewed and 23 approved every open source intelligence report that was disseminated by I&A prior to its 24 dissemination.

25 Q Can you repeat that actually? I missed that. You said -- can you repeat

1 the whole thing, please?

2 A I almost never review raw intelligence reporting before it is officially
3 disseminated. During the timeframe that you had identified, between the summer of 4 2020 and shortly after 6 January, I reviewed and approved nearly every open source
5 intelligence report that was disseminated by I&A.

6 Q And that would be preapproveds before dissemination?

7 A Prior to dissemination.

8 Q Okay. And that was not true before the summer of 2020, and it is not true
9 since, in the days following January 6th. Is that right?

10 A I think the official memo came out in spring of 2021, so I can -- like, I'm just 11 recalling from my recollection it was, I think, March of 2021, but from around that 12 timeframe, we instituted a policy for review of open source intelligence reports to which I
13 removed myself from that process. So it was sometime around March where I stopped
14 reviewing it. And prior to December of 2020, I did not review open source intelligence 15 reports prior to their dissemination.

16 Q Why before the summer of 2020 did you not do that?

17 A It's not typical for an individual at my level to review raw intelligence
18 production. It's not part of the process.

19 Q And what made it typical after the summer of 2020?

20 A After the summer of 2020, it was determined that a process was not in place
21 officially for the review and dissemination of open source intelligence report. And 22 following the release of three open source intelligence reports that had detailed 23 information on American journalists, I believe it was my -- my responsibility to ensure 24 that our open source intelligence reports received the proper review and oversight until a 25 more formal process was established and put into place.

1 Q Was that a policy or procedure that you undertook or did it come from some 2 sort of written guidance from anyone?

3 A I undertook it, and I disseminated the policy in March of 2021.

4 [REDACTED] Do you have a question?

5 [REDACTED] Ma'am, I just want to follow up on a question that my colleague
6 asked you earlier. I think in response to one of his questions, you said you almost never 7 review. And I was wondering if you could describe for me the circumstances that qualify 8 for the few times that you have.

9 So it sounds like it wasn't a blanket no, but you said you almost never review.
10 I'm just trying to get a sense of what you mean, what constitutes the circumstance where 11 you would, in fact, do that review?

12 Ms. Dobitsch. When I talk about raw intelligence reports, just to clarify, it's more
13 than open source intelligence reports. We also disseminate field intelligence reports
14 and intelligence information reports. So we have multiple products that we disseminate
15 that are considered raw intelligence. And so I'm speaking in the totality of what we do.

16 In those rare circumstances, it's often because if -- again, it's a high profile or high
17 visibility issue. An example would be if we were going to disseminate an intelligence
18 report on Russia/Ukraine, I'd want visibility so that I can be prepared to discuss or share 19 that information with our --

20 [REDACTED] It appears your video -- and your video has cut out, Ms. Dobitsch.

21 Ms. Dobitsch. Are we back?

22 [REDACTED] We can hear you, but we can't see you.

23 There we go.

24 Ms. Dobitsch. I apologize. We're in a SCIF, so every 15 minutes, the camera 25 shuts off, and we have to push a button to restart it.

1 [REDACTED] No problem.

2 So you were saying an example of a high-profile situation would be something like
3 on Russia and Ukraine. Is that correct?

4 Ms. Dobitsch. Yes. Typically, if we know that a report is going to be highly 5 visible, likely to be shared with very senior leaders, I ask my team to give me a heads-up
6 that that dissemination is forthcoming so that I can be prepared to brief that information 7 to our customers.

8 [REDACTED] Thank you, ma'am.

9 BY [REDACTED]:

10 Q Can you describe the difference, if there is any, between an open source
11 intelligence report, or an OSIR, and an intelligence information report, an IIR?

12 A Open source intelligence reports contain information derived from publicly
13 available information. Intelligence information reports are derived from I&A's 14 perspective almost entirely through overt HUMINT, which is our authority to collect 15 information from human sources.

16 Q Before the October 30, 22 -- 2020, excuse me, memorandum put out by the 17 Under Secretary for I&A at the time -- and it's exhibit 6 -- was the decision whether to 18 draft and put out an OSIR between an individual analyst and his or her supervisor? Did 19 it need to go any further up at that point?

20 A Prior to the October 2020 memo being disseminated, as I stated earlier,
21 from the summer of 2020 up until after January, I reviewed all open source intelligence 22 reports before they were disseminated.

23 Q And can you explain to me -- do you know what dates when you put in place
24 that policy?

25 A It was shortly after the dissemination of the open source intelligence reports

1 relating to the journalists. So based on my recollection, I believe it was sometime in 2 August or September of 2020.

3 Q So then could you describe for me briefly, then, after that memo, who 4 additionally had to review and sign off on OSIRs, other than it sounds like, you know, the 5 drafter, his or her supervisor, yourself? Did it add any other layer of review, and what 6 was it?

7 A According to the exhibit that you provided, the product, if it was specific to 8 reporting related to elections, it went through our Collections Management Division, as 9 well as our Intelligence Law Division and our Intelligence Oversight Office prior to 10 dissemination.

11 Q Is that your understanding of how it worked in practice following the 12 memorandum?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay. And did that remain the case up to and through January 6th?

15 A Yes.

16 Q What sort of coordination is there between I&A and other Federal 17 intelligence agencies like the FBI?

18 A Can you be more specific in terms of what -- on what, coordination on what?

19 Q Yeah. What relationship, I mean, what sort of communication? Is there 20 coordination in terms of the sharing, collection, consuming of intelligence between you 21 and other members of the intelligence community?

22 A We coordinate and collaborate every day multiple times a day with most of 23 our few stakeholders across the intelligence community.

24 Q What about with law enforcement and the intelligence shops within those 25 law enforcement agencies?

1           A    Every day and multiple times a day.

2           Q    A Washington Post article characterized the historical reputation of I&A this
3 way, quote, The Intelligence and Analysis Office has for years been the butt of jokes
4 among larger, more established agencies like the CIA and the FBI who liken it to a team of 5 junior varsity athletes. The DHS office produces reports that are largely based on 6 unclassified, often public sources of information that current and former officials have 7 said are of limited use, end quote.

8                   Putting aside the substance of the critique, does this, in your experience, 9 accurately characterize what you've heard about the perception of I&A among those 10 other organizations?

11          A    Absolutely not.

12          Q    Can you expound on that? Tell me what your experience has been.

13          A    Having served in multiple intelligence community organizations prior to 14 arriving at DHS, the perception with that DHS had a unique and very distinct and different 15 customer from other intelligence community members and focused primarily on serving
16 customers like State and local partners, for which it's statutorily required to share
17 intelligence information, which is different from those intelligence community members,
18 what I found serving those positions, that in most cases, those intelligence community
19 members had no idea what I&A did on a daily basis and did not understand their mission, 20 their purview, or their customer.

21          Q    So that still sounds a little bit about the substance of the critique. Had you
22 heard the perception that is characterized in the quote I read? Had you come across 23 that perception?

24          A    No.

25          Q    Okay.

1           A    No.

2           Q    So my reading is the first time you had ever heard that anyone had made
3 those sorts of comments about I&A?

4           A    Yes.

5           Q    I'd like to start with the summer of 2020. Can you list your reporting
6 requirements -- I'm going to say at that time. That doesn't necessarily imply that they 7 changed, and we'll get there, but can you list -- but I want to make clear I'm talking about 8 December of 2020 -- can you list the reporting requirements, of which I think there are 9 three. Is that right?

10          A    I'm not aware of reporting requirements related to the summer of 2020.

11          Q    Okay. What are they today?

12          A    I'm not sure what you're referencing. We drive intelligence based off of 13 collection requirements for which we have hundreds.

14          Q    Yeah. So I'm talking about the requirements or thresholds that need to be 15 met in order for something to be disseminated, for a report to be disseminated.

16          A    I'm not aware of a reporting requirement. In order for a report to be 17 disseminated, it has to be within our authorities, our guidelines, and answer a collection 18 requirement.

19          Q    All right. So, potentially, I'm misusing terminology, and so I don't want to, 20 you know, worry about semantics. So you tell me, what -- the OIG listed these three 21 things, and you tell me what they are characterized as, what you would call them. That 22 the -- whatever intelligence the analyst is reviewing contains true threats or incitement to 23 violence, not hyperbole; that it provides -- or that it provides information that enhances 24 understanding of known threat actors; or that it includes information that demonstrates a 25 risk of violence during a heightened threat environment. What are those?

1           A    Those are Attorney General guidelines.  There are authorities and abilities
2   for disseminating intelligence.

3           Q    Okay.  So is it fair to say --

4           A    For collecting and analyzing and disseminating intelligence.

5           Q    Repeat that last part.  I'm sorry.  We talked a little bit over each other.

6           A    These are the Attorney General guidelines that are provided for I&A's 7   collection analysis and dissemination of intelligence.

8           Q    Okay.  Do all of these conditions need to be present for the dissemination 9   of intelligence?

10          A    No.

11          Q    Does one at least need to be present for the dissemination of intelligence in 12   order to follow the guidelines?

13          A    Yeah.  Although this guidance from our Intelligence Law Division has 14   changed over time.

15          Q    Right.  And so is it okay if I use a shorthand, guidance for dissemination?

16          A    Sure.

17          Q    Okay, perfect.  So what was the -- were the three things I listed, was that 18   the guidance for dissemination over the summer of 2020, and, if not, can you tell me 19   what it was?

20          A    The guidance for dissemination was -- primarily over the summer of 2020
21   was typically all three of these, with a heavy focus on providing intelligence during a
22   heightened threat environment.

23          Q    Okay.  And so we talked about how, you know, all three are 24   not conditioned precedence for the dissemination.  That it's a disjunctive, it's or.  But 25   that's interesting, I mean, when you say with a heavy focus on the third.  What does that

1 mean in terms of, you know, the disjunctive, that it can be one, two, or three? What 2 does it mean that there's a heavy focus on one of them?

3 A From a leadership perspective, it was identified early on in the summer
4 of -- spring through summer of 2020 that we were operating in a heightened threat
5 environment. And I think there was a general understanding that that drove a lot of the 6 priorities as it related to the collection of intelligence.

7 Q I see. So is it fair to say you can still disseminate based on just, one, being 8 present, based on just, two, being present; but what you're telling me is that, given that 9 number three had been designated the time period as a heightened threat
10 environment -- I don't want put words in your mouth. I want to say it's easier -- but it is 11 a route that maybe was either more deployed or more accessible given that designation.
12 Is that fair?

13 A That was the perception at the time, yes.

14 Q And so I want to ask you about that, because you said that that sort of 15 designation -- how did that designation happen? Was it written? Was it formalized in 16 some way, or was it a perception?

17 A I think it was written and perception. Our Intelligence Law Division issued 18 and developed several job aids for our officers, to include one that looked at how we 19 collect and analyze information looking at national monuments, as well as what is 20 referred to as the Portland job aid. So it was codified for our collectors. And then 21 from a perception standpoint, the leadership at that time communicated to the 22 workforce that we were facing a heightened threat environment.

23 Q Do you recall when that guidance about the monuments came down?

24 A My recollection is that those aids occurred earlier in the summer, possibly 25 around the June, July timeframe. I recall that the Portland job aid was disseminated

1 before I&A deployed personnel to Portland.

2 Q You said that leadership sort of inculcated or reiterated this period as being 3 a heightened threat environment. Were you a part of the leadership that did that?

4 A I did not communicate that, but I was part of that leadership team, yes.

5 Q Do you recall who in particular was sort of fomenting or reiterating that 6 position, that understanding?

7 A The Senior Official Performing the Duties of Under Secretary, Mr. Brian 8 Murphy, and the Acting Principal Deputy Horace Jen were primarily in charge of 9 directing/dividing operations during this timeframe.

10 Q Did you get a sense -- because you sort of distinguished it for me both the 11 perception and the fact that it was codified, it was a written guidance -- did you get the 12 sense that they were doing that or that your leadership team decided to do that because 13 of the codification, or that separate and apart, that was their, I guess, opinion as to 14 whether you were in a heightened threat environment or not?

15 A The leadership determination drove the codification of that guidance by the 16 Intelligence Law Division.

17 Q Thank you. That helps me.

18 What was your opinion about that? Did you share in that opinion that it was a 19 heightened threat environment?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Can you -- you know, I want to make a distinction also. I've been calling it 22 guidance for dissemination. You talked about collection also. You used guidance for 23 collection and dissemination.

24 Do those three conditions, do they govern -- I understand it governs your ability to 25 distribute information via intelligence products. Does it limit what you can see or

1 monitor -- and I'm, you know, I know you have certain restrictions, you know, about 2 things being publicly available, that sort of thing. I assume that that is all met. That 3 those conditions are met.

4 I'm trying to understand if what you see is at all limited, as long as every other
5 condition is met, by these three -- these three guidance requirements.

6 A These three that are noted in the OIG report are just a snapshot of the 7 overarching guidelines which drive the full, again, operations of I&A. There are other 8 aspects where we must first identify that the activity -- the intelligence activity that we're 9 conducting meet the national departmental mission. So these are just a snapshot of 10 what we look to to make determinations about any intelligence activity that we conduct.

11 Q Right. So my question is, in essence, can you see, can you monitor 12 intelligence that does not meet one of these three requirements?

13 And maybe I should use "information" instead of "intelligence," but I'm trying to 14 get at whether these three requirements constrain what you're able to see, read.

15 A It's threat-specific. There are instances where our open source collectors
16 are looking at threats that are not violent in nature. So an example of these borderline
17 blunt (ph) activity. And so these are very specific to an environment in which we're 18 looking for violent threats. And in that perspective, particularly, yeah, our 19 counterterrorism mission, these are the primary guidelines for which we would also 20 monitor reporting. But they're not exclusive.

21 [REDACTED] If I could ask.

22 [REDACTED] Go ahead.

23 BY [REDACTED]:

24 Q So maybe another way of asking the question is: Are the three criteria, the 25 three guidelines listed, limiting in any nature, I think is what we're trying to understand.

1 Because when I hear the term "guidance" or "guidelines," it doesn't have the force and 2 effect of a statute or regulation, and it's somewhere in between that and policy.

3 So we're trying to understand, or at least I'm trying to understand, how 4 constraining are the guidelines on what you do day to day?

5 A From my perspective, it's not the guidelines that are necessarily constrained;
6 it's the interpretation of those guidelines. And those interpretations have changed over 7 the course of the last several years, which has created confusion amongst our workforce
8 and our leadership team in terms of how we apply the Attorney General guidelines to 9 what we do every day.

10 Q And does ILD play a role in helping senior leadership interpret those 11 guidelines?

12 A Yes. They are the primary office for which we make those determinations 13 about how we apply those.

14 Q And from your perspective, has the interpretation of the guidelines based on 15 a guidance provided to you by ILD changed in anyway from the summer of 2020 through 16 January 6th until now, or has the interpretation remained consistent?

17 A It's changed through nearly every experience over the last several years.

19 BY [REDACTED]:

20 Q I just want to close the loop, put a pin on this. I'm trying to understand -- I 21 understand that these -- one of these conditions needs to be present in order to 22 distribute information via intelligence products. I want to understand that when you
23 are monitoring, let's say, social media that is otherwise compliant -- I know you
24 mentioned there are, of course, other guidance and restrictions on, you know, what you
25 can do, including, you know, I believe, not -- you know, private chats and

1     trying -- infiltrating those, that would -- assuming that everything else is met, can you
2     continue to monitor, let's say, social media activity even if what you are reading does not
3     constitute a true threat or incitement of violence, you know, it's not a heightened threat 4     environment, and the information that you're reading doesn't at the time enhance your 5     understanding of known actors? I'm trying to understand if those three limit what you 6     can read, what you can monitor, what you can see.

7           A     So I'll be the first to admit that there are a lot of exceptions to these 8     guidelines and the extent to which we apply them. So it makes the question you're 9     asking difficult to answer. And so what I would say, that in many circumstances, it's 10    specific to the nature of the specific information that the collector is looking at, the 11    context in which the collector is looking at that information, and then the nature of the 12    information itself.

13           So that is why it is difficult to get a singular answer in that there are a lot of 14    exceptions with how we apply these guidelines based on the information at hand, the 15    circumstance in which the information is obtained, and then the context in which the 16    information exists.

17           Generally, I would say that in terms of monitoring open source information that is 18    publicly available, generally, as it relates to the specific focus of looking at threats of 19    violence, we would -- we would need at least one of these to be present for us to monitor 20    it, generally.

21           Q     I really appreciate that answer. And so if you would assist me if, you
22    know -- if the question is difficult for a reason, please let me know. I very much 23    appreciate that answer. I think that very much did answer the question.

24           So back to just now, you know, guidance for dissemination, right? We 25    understand that this, you know, as we talked about, one of these should be present.

1 Does this guidance limit your ability to put together a threat picture or landscape in the 2 form of a bulletin that does not specifically reference any one particular piece of 3 intelligence?

4 So I understand that you can't distribute information via intelligence products.
5 I'm trying to understand if the specific intelligence is not mentioned in the product but 6 that it informs, let's say, you know, across the board, can it inform an intelligence bulletin
7 or would that be verboten? Would that be restricted, prohibited?

8 A Typically, in terms of the guidelines we use, the IC directive is another 9 guideline we use to disseminate finished intelligence production, which would, in this 10 case I think what you're referencing is a bulletin, we would consider that finished 11 intelligence. Generally, the best practices and the guidelines require evidence to 12 support your analytic assessment. And so while information that we're seeing online 13 can inform that analysis, the preference is that information be documented in some way,
14 primarily through an OSIR, so that it can be used as evidence to support our assessment.

15 And so when information doesn't meet one of these thresholds, generally, our 16 analysts, like I said, it informs their understanding, but it is not typically included in a 17 finished intelligence product, and it does complicate our ability to produce things like a 18 bulletin.

19 Q Thank you.

20 And then I understood you to say that that's the, you know, preference, the strong 21 preference. Do you recall occasions when, you know, no OSIR with actual particular 22 intelligence was put out but yet the intelligence, the sort of information was used to 23 generally put together a bulletin?

24 A I don't recall anything specific. Most of the time when we produce finished 25 intelligence where we don't have that document, in reporting it, often an assessment that

1 articulates that we do not have information on a specific threat. So that's the most
2 common example where we don't have the information. We often put out finished 3 intelligence that articulates that we lack information on that.

4 Q Got it. The threat assessment put out by Capitol Police on January 3rd,
5 have you had an opportunity -- as you sit there today, have you seen that document 6 before?

7 A No.

8 Q Okay. And I didn't mean to hide the ball. I didn't provide it as an exhibit
9 because it's -- I didn't know whether you had seen it before or not. So I appreciate that.
10 Tell me about your ability to save or archive information. Can you retain it for a 11 period while your analysts are deciding whether it meets the reporting requirements?
12 How long do you have -- if that's true, how long do you have until it must be deleted if it 13 is determined that it does not meet the requirements?

14 A I don't know the specific answer to that. I know that we are able to 15 capture, retain the information for a period of time for which our collectors or our 16 analysts can make a determination as to whether or not that information meets 17 collection requirements and our guidelines for reporting, but I don't know how long that 18 time is.

19 Q Okay. So we talked about this, right, the departmental guidance released
20 the summer authorizing the monitoring of social media posts as well as the use of public 21 information sources to keep tabs -- this is language that -- reporting language on 22 individuals or groups that department says may, quote, damage or destroy any public 23 monument, memorial, or statue, end quote.

24 Can you describe how that departs, if at all, from your -- from before, from how 25 your restrictions operated traditionally?

1           A    I think that as it relates to reporting on national monuments, generally, prior 2   to that legal guidance being disseminated, generally, the perception was that national 3   monuments don't necessarily fall into the critical infrastructure category for which we 4   have our authority to produce intelligence and analysis. There was not a focus on 5   collecting that as it relates to our critical infrastructure and key resources mission.

6           And so there were questions raised when there were threats of violence
7   associated with the taking down of certain statues or monuments. And so the 8   leadership asked the Intelligence Law Division to clarify the extent to which those were in 9   our mission space.

10          Q    Did that affect how long you were able to hold on to or archive these 11   materials, these monitoring of social media posts and use of public information sources, 12   that you know of?

13          A    No, I'm not aware that there was a change as a result of that guidance.

14          Q    Do you know if dossiers were maintained on these individuals or groups as a 15   result of this guidance?

16          A    Not specific to the national monuments. I'm not aware of any dossiers.

17          Q    Okay. And does that mean -- are you saying not specific because the ones
18   that you're aware of relate to the American journalists that you talked about earlier?

19          A    No. That was also not connected. Federal (ph) and national monuments,
20   I'm not aware of any specific intelligence reporting that isn't serialized. So if there's a 21   report, it's likely serialized. I'm not aware of any information that wasn't serialized that 22   was maintained in any way on that specific issue.

23          Q    Okay. What about on just individuals or groups over the summer? Were 24   dossiers maintained? They used a phrase, keep tabs on individuals or groups. I'm 25   trying to understand, from your perspective, how that practically worked.

1           A    I'm not aware that I&A officers captured and checked dossiers on 2 individuals. Typically, again, we do not keep information that doesn't meet the 3 requirements for reporting. So individuals -- the only thing I can think of that relates to 4 your question is the production of our operational background reports, or the 5 OBIRs -- OBRs, where individuals who were arrested on charges in Portland were 6 evaluated and analyzed to determine whether or not a network existed to commit the act
7 of violence that were taking place there.

8           Q    Okay. We've talked about how the differing interpretations of the 9 guidance for dissemination -- that's the phrase I'm using -- have changed over time. My 10 question is: Formally on paper, have they amended or changed in that time?

11          A    Yes.

12          Q    Okay. Let's talk about how, because -- so you told me, over the summer of 13 2020, that there were these three with a particular focus on number three. How has 14 that changed in the time period between the summer of 2020 and January 6th, if at all?

15          A    Sure. So to start, we both say believe certainly the legal guidance on the 16 monuments was rescinded. And I believed the guidance on the Portland job aid was 17 also rescinded. So those were rescinded since they were issued. Additionally, after 18 the summer of 2020, all of I&A was retrained on our oversight guidelines and authorities.
19 And, specifically, our open source intelligence collectors were briefed only -- or trained
20 only on true threats and incitement rather than the other two aspects noted in the OIG
21 report, which is documented in the training materials provided by our Intelligence Law
22 Division. And since then, our -- since January 6th, the guidance has now changed back 23 to an increased focus on what we would call risk and vulnerabilities rather than just 24 true threats and incitement.

25          Q    Okay. When you talked about through January 6th, it sounded the changes

1        were about training and interpretations. I guess I'm trying to ask these three. Was 2        there official change in language with the requirements, not their interpretation, not how 3        they're trained, just literally formally amended or changed in some way? One of the 4        requirements dropping off entirely, adding a new requirement, have these three stayed 5        constant in the formal, written capacity?

6            A     My understanding is there's no formal written capacity that details these.

7            Q     Are they not documented anywhere?

8            A     No. I think outside of the Attorney General guidance, which are not this 9        specific, I'm not aware of guidance that's been formally disseminated by our Intelligence 10       Law Division or others that articulate these specifically. The formal aspects were 11       provided in slides via training to our workforce.

12          Q     So then if it's fair, you said, you know, you talked these three being present
13       at the summer of 2020. These were understandings. These were not the language 14       that you had seen written down previously outside of slides in a training?

15          A     The only document I recall that hinted at these aspects but it was still 16       primarily focused on true threats and incitement was a 2018 memo that focused on a 17       particular threat that we had seen against departmental personnel and the doxing of 18       those personnel that was very specific to that timeframe in that threat from 2018, from 19       which most of our officers in our Intelligence Law Division extrapolated to other problems 20       that -- because there was a lack of written guidance on that.

21          Q     The OIG report obviously sort of puts these three out as a little, you know,
22       block of three requirements. Did you see them -- before the OIG report, did you see
23       them as a sort of block of requirements? I know you said that there are others, but I
24       guess analytically, is this the way that you and others within I&A conceived of the 25       guidance for dissemination, that these sort of three are sort of the three leading kind of

1 requirements, one of which needs to be met in order for information to be shared via 2 intelligence products?

3 A I think it's changed over in the course of the last several years. As I said, I
4 think, generally, there was an understanding that three -- these three exist. Though
5 throughout the summer of 2020, the focus was on providing what I would consider to be 6 risk and vulnerability information related to the heightened threat environment.
7 Whereas, after the summer of 2020, there was a very narrow focus on true threats and 8 incitement. And now we've kind of circled back to a more measured approach that 9 works at all three.

10 Q Okay. I'm going to get to that narrow focus. I'm going to wait until your 11 camera comes back on. Unless the court reporter doesn't mind.

12 Okay. It's back.

13 A Thank you for the heads-up.

14 Q Of course. No problem.

15 So then is it fair to say that the three were still conceived of as the three, they 16 were on the minds of analysts, you know, post the summer heading into January 6th, but 17 as you mentioned with inter -- the focus changed. So as where you were highlighting 18 that the focus was on number three over the summer, the sort of requirement that was 19 doing a lot of the work -- you called it a narrow focus -- since had been that first 20 requirement contains true threats or incitement to violence. Is that a fair 21 characterization?

22 A I think after the summer of 2020, there was a lot of confusion about who 23 could determine a heightened threat environment. In some of the training that was 24 provided to the workforce, it was not clear. There were references that, you know, the 25 publishment of a National Terrorism Advisory System Bulletin, which is what the

1 Department uses to raise the threat alert on a topic, was not sufficient alone to 2 determine the heightened threat environment. And so there was not a good
3 understanding of who and how that determination was made and who had the authority 4 to declare that.

5 So not only was it not emphasized, it was not clarified, and following the summer
6 of 2020, kind of what a heightened threat environment was and who was able to make 7 that determination.

1

2 [10:32 a.m.]

3 [REDACTED] Okay.

4 BY [REDACTED]:

5 Q And that sort of explains why maybe number 3 fell a little bit less out of 6 favor, why it was less focused on. What about number 2? Because you said there was 7 a narrow focus on 1. What happened on number 2 that the focus remained on number 8 1 as opposed to number 2?

9 A Number 2, I think, is a little bit more vague. I think that, again, known 10 threat actors is difficult. Oftentimes we don't know who the threat actors are, 11 particularly as it relates to the open-source environment.

12 Much of the threat reporting we're seeing is coming from anonymous individuals 13 or individuals for which we do not know who they are, and so that, it doesn't necessarily 14 apply, I would say, in the open-source environment as much as the other two do.

15 Q And you used the phrase "know." Is your understanding that --

16 A Known, known.

17 Q Known, right.

18 A Known threat --

19 Q Yes. It's just that, in your answer, you said, we don't know whether -- we 20 don't know necessarily the identities of people obviously on -- necessarily on social 21 media. But I want to know, I guess I'm trying to figure out how much work the word
22 "know" is doing in that. So if -- and I know this is a hypothetical, but help me work 23 through it. -- if there is a social post where the person is using language that is known to 24 be used, let's say, by the Proud Boys, right, certain phrases, P-E-D-E, -- I don't think I know
25 how to pronounce it, it might be "peedy" -- but P-E-D-E or, you know, I do, I believe, being

1 sort of a before I do, meaning, before I undertake violent action; is it your understanding
2 that that could be used to figure out whether that's a known threat actor, given that, you
3 know, potentially obviously the Proud Boys have been known to engage in violence in the 4 past or -- or because it is, you know, the person didn't, in my hypothetical, affirmatively
5 say they were a Proud Boy, that that may not be a known threat actor given just the fact
6 that they're using just those phrases?

7 A Yeah. I think it's dependent on the circumstance, but in the case where an 8 individual is only, alone, using language, we would not characterize that as a known 9 threat actor.

10 Q What about --

11 A Or if there's an individual who states --

12 Q Go on.

13 A -- that they are a member of the Proud Boys.

14 Q Okay. Got it. So you feel pretty comfortable that if they expressly say 15 something that intimates, you know, that they are a member of the Proud Boys expressly, 16 that that number 2 would be triggered, but that language might not?

17 A Yes, I would say it aids in the determination to the extent to which we would 18 be reporting on that information.

19 Q Okay. Thank you. So I want to ask you about, I want to stick to the 20 summer -- and we'll switch obviously to January 6th in a moment -- you talked about the 21 I&A producing intelligence reports about the work of American journalists covering 22 protests in Portland, Oregon.

23 Let me ask you, for the record, did those disseminated products, the ones on the 24 journalists, meet the reporting requirements? And I'm sorry. I was supposed to use 25 the phrase "guidance for dissemination." Did it meet the guidance for dissemination?

1           A    That's a difficult question, one, because the reporting on those American
2   journalists does not fall within this category of violence.   The determination that was 3   made as it relates to the journalists is focused on the leak of government information,
4   which is something we've reported on in the past.

5           Q    Well, it's my understanding that, at some point, the CETC director reviewed
6   366 OSIRs released between May 25th and August 4th and found that 23 were recalled
7   for not fitting the guidance for dissemination.   Is that right?

8           A    Not -- those are -- they didn't meet collection requirements, which is distinct 9   and different from the oversight guidance and Attorney General guidelines.   The 23 that 10   were identified did not answer a collection requirement.

11          Q    I see.

12          A    But they met the guidelines for -- they met the guidelines for dissemination.
13   They did not answer a collection requirement.

14          Q    Okay.   It's your understanding that all 366 did meet the 15   dissemination -- guidance for dissemination?

16          A    I'm not aware that a determination was made that we violated our oversight 17   guidelines by disseminating those.

18          Q    Okay.   Did the products meet collection requirements in your mind?

19          A    I did not personally review those OSIRs.   I did review -- I asked -- are we still 20   on?

21          [REDACTED]   Still there.

22          BY [REDACTED]:

23          Q    Yes, I hear you.

24          A    Okay.   I asked the then CETC director to do that review of all the OSIRs.   I
25   reviewed his analysis of that and concur with his findings based on what he provided me,

1 but I did not independently review each of those OSIRs.

2 Q Okay. So, generally, as it relates to the social justice protests over the 3 summer, do you believe I&A followed the guidelines for dissemination appropriately?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And is it fair to say, because you talked about a focus, the designation of it 6 being a heightened threat environment, that that -- that requirement was doing a lot of 7 the work, that that is -- that is why you believe, by and large, the guidance for 8 dissemination was followed over the summer?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Is it fair to say that were there not a heightened threat environment 11 designation, the number of disseminated reports would have been far fewer?

12 A I think that was one contributing factor. I think a lot of the decision to 13 produce as much as we did was based on leadership direction to identify threats to law
14 enforcement that were operating in Portland as part of our public safety and security 15 responsibilities.

16 Q Tell me about that leadership direction. What was it?

17 A At the time, the Department was deploying personnel to secure national 18 monuments and obviously to provide protection to Federal facilities throughout the 19 country, and the leadership at the time believed that it was INA's mission to make sure
20 that we provided intelligence support to our Federal partners and to our State and local 21 partners, who were encountering these threats of violence throughout the summer.

22 Q And you mentioned that this was direction from leadership. Does that 23 include yourself? Was that direction that you helped inculcate?

24 A I did not provide that direction, though I obviously oversaw the offices that 25 were responsible for implementing it. The direction came from Mr. Murphy and

1 Mr. Jen.

2 Q Did you agree with that direction?

3 A I didn't feel comfortable at the time, understanding our authorities and 4 responsibilities in this mission space. When I was asked to fleet up as the deputy under 5 secretary in May of 2020, I had less than 9 months of experience working in DHS, I'd 6 never worked the domestic mission before, and I had almost no time in the deputy under 7 secretary role. And so I didn't believe that I had the knowledge, experience, or 8 background to make those determinations at the time.

9 Q In hindsight, given now the full breadth of your experience, do you agree 10 with their assessment?

11 A I believe that we were facing a heightened threat environment in which we 12 were responsible providing -- to providing support to our Federal, State, local, Tribal, and 13 territorial partners, to enable their ability to counter those threats.

14 I think that our resources were not positioned in a way for us to -- just to 15 accomplish that mission. We were not set up in a way to serve in that capacity. Even 16 if it falls in our authorities, that had not traditionally been our focus. And so, in 17 retrospect, I would say that we were not resourced or positioned or trained to accomplish 18 the mission we were asked.

19 Q But you did feel as though, had you had those resources and that training, 20 that it was -- that, you know, the belief that it was a heightened threat environment was 21 a correct, accurate belief?

22 A Yes, I believe we were facing a heightened threat environment in the 23 summer of 2020.

24 Q Let me ask you about a table that's reproduced in the OIG report on page 28.
25 In it, they found there were more probable indicators of escalation of protest-related

1 violence for January 6th than for over the summer, and at least in the chart as it's 2 depicted, it's somewhat lopsided as far more probable indicators on the January 6th side
3 than it is over the summer.

4           Given your belief that there was a heightened threat environment over the 5 summer, can you talk to me about that, what you think about that chart and what it
6 means at least relationally from there, if you're looking at that as a sort of indicator, that 7 wouldn't be as heightened certainly as for the lead-up to January 6th? What do you 8 think about that?

9           A     So the heightened threat environment was just, as I said, a subset to the 10 more overarching leadership direction. Part of -- or a major driver of why we conducted 11 the activities we did over the summer was the leadership direction to support the Federal 12 and DHS partners who were engaged in protecting Federal facilities and other key 13 resources and critical infrastructure, to inform them of information related to threats.

14           So the heightened threat environment was the baseline in terms of the guidelines, 15 but the leadership direction was to prioritize identifying and producing intelligence that 16 helped these partners mitigate the violent threats they were facing throughout the 17 summer.

18           The distinction in January 6th was that we were facing a heightened threat
19 environment, but we lacked specific reporting, indicating, you know, threats of violence 20 beyond what we had already produced throughout the election season in the run-up to 21 January 6th.

22           Q     So is it fair to say then, you know, you agreed -- in hindsight, you agree that 23 the sort of direction from leadership was appropriate over the summer, and, you
24 know -- January 6th, looking back at it, this chart necessarily would not make you rethink 25 whether that was appropriate, it would make you rethink whether, you know, the

1 resources that were put into January 6th were appropriate. I don't know if that wasn't 2 clear, I'm sorry, but.

3 A I think we never changed our opinion that the heightened threat
4 environment changed from the summer through January 6th, and, in fact, we produced 5 multiple finished intelligence products before and during the election season that 6 highlighted that we were in a heightened threat environment, particularly in the run-up
7 to the election and the certification of the results.

8 So the heightened threat environment, from INA's perspective, did not change.
9 It was the focus of the reporting, which in the summer was focused on providing very 10 tactical intelligence information to support law enforcement officers, which transitioned,
11 through January 6th, to focus on filling strategic intelligence gaps driven by collection
12 requirements, focused on true threats and incitement.

13 The heightened threat environment did not change.

14 Q I guess I'm trying to get your opinion, and I think I understand -- respond to 15 this criticism -- and I'm sure you've heard it -- that there was -- that it was heavy-handed 16 and disproportionate the level of monitoring, collection, and dissemination over the 17 summer to the threat landscape, to the picture posed over the summer by the social 18 justice protests. If I understand you correctly, you would not agree with that critique?

19 A I don't believe it was disproportionate. A DHS law enforcement officer was 20 killed within the first week of the civil unrest, and so it was immediate in terms of the 21 level of violence that was occurring throughout the country, targeting law enforcement
22 officers and DHS personnel.

23 So it was very clear from the onset that there was a departmental mission in part 24 because one of our officers was shot and killed by a domestic violent extremist.

25 Q The number itself, 366, in the span of a little over 2 months, is that high

1 traditionally given other periods that you've had your job?

2 A Yes, I think that's high.

3 Q Okay. All right. So we'll drill -- you've mentioned this, but we'll drill down
4 on the so-called, quote/unquote, chilling effect or how the interpretation became a little 5 fuzzier as you mentioned.

6 An analyst tells the OIG, right, that, quote, they thought almost anything was 7 reportable during the Portland protests, end quote. Can you explain to me, you know,
8 in your opinion, how did that impression, at least with that one analyst, of reporting
9 anything, get inculcated, get passed down, get transmitted?

10 A I think that was transmitted primarily through the legal guidance, the 11 Portland job aid, and then leadership direction to report on threats of violence to law
12 enforcement officers. It was very broad guidance to report on threats to law 13 enforcement officers.

14 And Federal facilities.

15 Q And just to make clear, right, again, in hindsight, you believe that that 16 guidance, that very broad guidance, was appropriate?

17 A I think the mission of providing intelligence to support our departmental law
18 enforcement officers and their efforts to protect Federal facilities is appropriate. I don't 19 believe that -- how broad the guidance was, was appropriate or necessary, based on our 20 capabilities and resources at the time.

21 We were not built to do that mission.

22 Q Right. So do you agree -- it's, you know, a little bit said informally, right,
23 but do you agree with the characterization -- I don't know if you'll agree -- do you agree
24 with the characterization that almost anything was reportable during the Portland 25 protests?

1           A    No, I don't agree with that characterization. I would say that there was 2   broad guidance focused primarily on our mission in the public safety and security space,
3   and our departmental mission to enable our components, through intelligence support, 4   drove that broader understanding of the heightened threat environment and the 5   information that was deemed reportable.

6           Q    So it's fair, if I understand what you're saying, it's that you understand that 7   that impression might've been left on some analysts because of the broad guidance, but 8   that that would be hyperbole in your mind than almost anything was reportable during 9   the Portland protests?

10          A    Yes, I would say that's hyperbole.

11          Q    What role did you play in advising about the guidance dissemination and 12   how it should be interpreted over the summer?

13          A    As I mentioned earlier, when the open-source intelligence reports were 14   being disseminated, I was very new in the position, and so I had no visibility, coming into 15   the role, what the process and procedures were for disseminating open source 16   intelligence reports.

17               And that level of detail and specificity typically, even to this day, is not right to the 18   level of my position.

19          Q    And I have, like, about 10 more questions, and I think then is it all right if we 20   take a break? Ten more minutes of questions, I think, or something?

21          A    Sure.

22          Q    Okay.

23          A    Sure. I was going to say, I don't know if we can do 10 more questions, but 24   10 more minutes --

25          Q    I meant 10 more minutes, sorry, not 10 questions.

1           A    No worries.

2           Q    One, you know, one analyst in the OIG report called it a pendulum swing in 3 terms of at least the interpretation on the guidance dissemination after the summer.
4 What about that characterization, do you agree with that?

5           A    I think it's fair to say that there was a reinterpretation of the guidance that 6 reduced the information from which we would report on compared to the summer.

7           Q    Was it a dramatic reduction?

8           A    I would say that it was a significant narrowing of scope of mission.

9           Q    Did that come about gradually, or was it immediate, given I think that you
10 said that it was coming from, you know, leadership?

11          A    I would say that it occurred very quickly after the leadership that was here
12 was removed at that time and new leadership came in. It was the first priority to retrain 13 the entire workforce on our oversight guidelines, responsibilities, and authorities, and to 14 retrain the open-source collectors, which was more narrowly focused on identifying true 15 threats and incitement.

16          Q    Did you agree with the removal of Brian Murphy -- or reassignment of 17 Mr. Murphy?

18          A    I don't agree or disagree on that decision.

19          Q    But I think I understand you to say that the broad guidance that was being 20 transmitted by leadership, including Mr. Murphy, was appropriate in your mind, right?

21          A    I don't believe that the broad guidance was appropriate based on how we 22 were resourced, trained, or experienced to operate in this mission.

23          Q    I guess as a question of appropriateness, you did believe, as a moral 24 question, I suppose, you believe that that way was appropriate?

25          A    I believe that we have a responsibility to provide intelligence information to

1 law enforcement officers to help mitigate threats that they're facing. I believe that the 2 information we sought to provide over the summer focused primarily on identifying 3 specific threats of violence to law enforcement officers. And I believe that's an 4 appropriate mission for I&A.

5 Q Can you talk to me about these sort of -- there's also an interest, right, in the 6 privacy of American citizens. That's also, I think, a consideration and a goal that I&A 7 seeks to preserve.

8 So can you talk about, because it's a spectrum, that tension that, you know, those 9 competing interests, and where the happy medium might lie?

10 A Yeah. We have an equal responsibility to identifying, anticipating, and 11 mitigating -- helping to mitigate threats to the homeland while also protecting the 12 privacy, civil rights, and civil liberties of the American people.

13 Obviously, that is a very complex and difficult mission when we're operating in a 14 space in which we're dealing mostly with U.S. person information, and the extent to 15 which the information that an individual may be sharing may be protected by the First 16 Amendment or by constitutional rights or be indicative of a threat for which we can 17 identify, warrant, and potentially mitigate.

18 Q So, if you could use, through that scope -- because when I asked you about 19 the appropriate level of the broad guidance, you know, you talked about the, you know, 20 the benefit of having information, of having information out there and the threat that 21 was posed to law enforcement, given that it is a balancing act with what you just talked 22 about, talk to me about why, if you so believe that the proper balance was struck over the 23 summer of 2020.

24 A My understanding of the open-source intelligence reports and other 25 reporting that we put out contains specific threats of violence or tactics used to commit

1 violence against law enforcement officers which is not protected by the First Amendment
2 or constitutional right.

3 Q Okay. So I want to direct your attention to, you know, the chats between 4 the analysts that were referred to by the OIG in its report, and they discuss about how 5 the guidance for dissemination is just very high right now. You've sort of talked about it
6 as a sort of switch in focus from a more ample, you know, requirement or condition,
7 being the heightened threat environment, to potentially a more narrow focus on the first,
8 which is the true threats or incitement to violence and not hyperbole.

9 Can you talk to me about that perception that it is, that the guidance is high, that 10 it's different, that the level of meeting the same guidance dissemination requirements 11 that were present over the summer, that they have changed in terms of how strict or 12 loose they are? And -- and -- yeah, can you explain to me why that perception was out 13 there?

14 A Perception that the focus had changed?

15 Q I don't -- I don't think that says that the focus has changed. I just think that 16 it says -- that the -- I think the chats reveal that they believed the guidance to be higher,
17 that the threshold is higher -- excuse me -- let me use the word "threshold."

18 A Yes. Yes. So, yeah, my interpretation of those chats is the focus on the 19 ability for the collector to identify a true threat, which was not the primary motivator of 20 what drove the intelligence collection and dissemination over the summer.

21 So the distinction of being able to prove that the individual that is discussing the 22 threat -- threatening information has both the intent and the capability to commit that 23 act of violence.

24 Q And, so far in our conversation, I haven't heard you refer to what I think I
25 have heard before, including in briefings by the Department, by I&A about this supposed

1 chilling effect, you know, that the criticism leveled at I&A over the summer and sort of 2 hesitance, fear of scrutiny or reprisal paired with that criticism.

3 Do you personally believe, is that a contributing factor at all in this switch in the 4 perception of the threshold?

5 A I think it was a contributor, but I would argue that the primary change was 6 the guidance that was provided and the lack of clarity and written guidance that helped 7 the collectors truly understand their mission in the space.

8 Again, we -- outside of the Attorney General guidelines, there's no formal, written 9 guidance that helps the collectors apply our guidelines to their daily missions.

10 And, with the rescinding of the Portland job aid and the monuments job aid, they 11 had to refer back to a 2018 memo for which to glean guidance on their current activities.

12 And so they were forced to rely on the information that was provided primarily in 13 verbal training and verbal guidance, that was communicated from the Intelligence Law
14 Division than more articulate leadership and I would say legal guidance on how they 15 should operate in the space, and that was a primary contributor.

16 Q You did mention that you believe that the chilling effect was a partly 17 contributing factor. Can you describe for us, and it may be anecdotally, how you've 18 come to that conclusion? What did you see here that leads you to believe that that was 19 a factor?

20 A Certainly I think certain leaders at the time were articulating that the 21 information we did put out was wrong or inaccurate or that we shouldn't have done it.
22 So there were leaders who believed that the reports that we had published over the 23 summer were not -- were not okay. And that was, obviously, shared, I think, amongst 24 the workforce, that there was certainly a perception that, separate from the three OSIRs 25 on the journalists, which everyone collectively agreed should not have occurred, that

1 more broadly the work that the office had done over the summer was not appropriate
2 and not seen as positive.

3 Q Who were those leaders?

4 A At the time, it was, I think, the acting -- I don't know what her position was,
5 but certainly Melissa Smislova at the time. She was serving in either the senior official 6 performing the duties or the acting principal deputy.

7 Q And I know you used leaders, plural, but just her?

8 A I don't -- to be frank, I don't recall who was in and outside of the office
9 during that time because we had so much leadership turnover. But I think generally the 10 sense was that the leadership did not believe that the work that was done over the 11 summer was -- was good.

12 Q And, from your previous answers, I understand, you would not be one of 13 those leaders who was fomenting or bolstering that sense?

14 A I certainly -- let me turn our camera on, one second.

15 Q Oh, we see you.

16 A Okay, good. We caught it that time.

17 I would say that, you know, in the aftermath and looking back on the situation,
18 there are always things we could've done better, but I think, based on what was asked of 19 us and what we did, you know, I felt that there was a lot of good work that did occur
20 throughout the summer.

21 And we received a lot of positive feedback from our law enforcement partners
22 that the intelligence that we did provide actually helped keep them safe.

23 So I think I was probably a little bit more on the positive side in that I do believe 24 that parts of what we did actually contributed to improving public safety and security
25 throughout the summer.

1           Q     Putting aside the mismatch, as you said, between the resources and the 2     training and, you know, meeting the moment, meeting the demand of the heightened 3     threat environment as you saw it, what were those things -- outside of that, what were 4     those things that you said we could do better -- we could have done better?   Excuse me.

5           A     Certainly from my perspective, the leadership guidance direction, the 6     training of the officers, preparing them for a dynamic and complex and, in certain 7     circumstances, a threatening environment, making sure that they were better equipped 8     to do the mission.

9           I also think, you know, from my perspective, we published a lot of reports, but 10    many of those reports probably didn't have the level of specificity that we could've had to 11    better inform the law enforcement officers.   So, for me, it's a quality, not a quantity 12    metric.

13          And so, looking back, how did we make sure that the reports that we did provide 14    had, you know, good quality, and that they were informative.   So I think that's 15    something that we've taken back and applied moving forward.

16          And then I would say, again, just the processes and procedures for which we 17    handled our work over the summer were either not in place or circumvented or 18    misapplied in many cases.

19          For example, the leadership dynamics contributed to a lack of understanding of 20    our workforce, in terms of who they were answering to and where they were getting 21    direction from.

22          Q     And, I'm sorry, the first three words of your answer were "leadership 23    guidance direction."   What about the leadership guidance direction did you think did not 24    work well?

25          A     I don't think it was effectively communicated and then, again, the resources

1 applied. I think, as you look back, you can see that a lot of this was not documented
2 formally from the leadership. There was not that formal guidance provided from 3 Mr. Murphy or Mr. Jen to the workforce. Often I think the goal of what we did changed
4 and was not effectively communicated.

5 Q And my last question before we take our break, I just want to go back to the 6 chats between the analysts where they say -- and I want to focus on the word
7 "now" -- they say that the threshold itself being just very high now, indicating, of course,
8 as you've discussed, that it -- a recognition that it appears to change over time but also a 9 recognition that it might be temporary.

10 Is that a sense that pervaded in I&A that -- that not only had it changed over the 11 summer but that it would continue potentially to change, that it would ebb and flow 12 depending on certain factors?

13 Ms. Rapoport. Sorry, [REDACTED]. Which page are you on the report?

14 [REDACTED] I'm just talking about the chats that are reproduced in the report.

15 Ms. Rapoport. Right. Yeah, some of them are redacted. I'm just trying to 16 figure out where you're quoting from.

17 [REDACTED] I don't need the -- I just need -- I'm talking about the sentiment
18 that -- I'm asking if there was a sentiment in I&A that the guidance for dissemination 19 would ebb and flow and change over time.

20 Ms. Rapoport. If you're referring to any of the in camera documents, I think our 21 preference is to keep that line of questioning to the end and go off record for that.

22 [REDACTED] So I'm not --

23 Ms. Dobitsch. I think I can answer this -- yeah, I think I can answer your question
24 if there was a sentiment. I think there was a sentiment that the guidance has changed.
25 I think it's also reality; the guidance has changed, you know, to include now, where what

1 was a primary application of the guidance has changed, again, from primarily focused on 2 a heightened threat environment to identifying true threats and incitement and then now
3 going back to, I think, a more moderate combination of all aspects of our guidelines.

4 BY [REDACTED]:

5 Q But I suppose, on January 6th, there had only been one change, right? So I
6 know that since it has changed back, but I'm trying to get a feel from you whether 7 that -- whether the sense -- and I know this is, you know, it's a little hard, but whether the 8 sense was that it had changed or that it would continue to change, whether it was the 9 sort of thing that would change as time progressed or that there had just been one 10 change, and that's the change now, it's going to be, you know, permanently. Was there 11 a feeling that the --

12 A The -- yes.

13 Q -- would continue to change? Go ahead, I'm sorry.

14 A Yeah. The perception was that it was right now, yes, because the 15 experience was that the guidance has changed with the leadership, and so I think the 16 perception was that the current guidance at the time based on, again, the leadership 17 focus was much higher.

18 [REDACTED] How much time do you need for a break? Do you want 10
19 minutes, is that good, or 5? Whatever --

20 Ms. Rapoport. Just the 10.

21 Ms. Dobitsch. Yeah, 10's good.

22 [REDACTED] Perfect. Why don't we come back at 11:16.

23 Ms. Dobitsch. Okay. Thank you.

24 [REDACTED] Thank you.

25 [REDACTED] So we're off the record at 11:06.

[Recess.]

2 [11:17 a.m.]

3 [REDACTED] So we're back on the record at 11:17.

4 BY [REDACTED]:

5 Q Let's move on from the summer now toward, you know, the election season.

6 There was that memorandum that we talked about put out by [REDACTED], this extra -- this
7 sort of requiring pre-approval for the dissemination of OSIRs related to civil disturbance
8 or the election, among other items.

9 What was your understanding of why it was tied to the election, right? The 10 summer social justice protests weren't obviously tied to an election in particular. What 11 about this election and the anticipated First Amendment activity surrounding, you know,
12 claims about its security, what about that in your minds or in the I&A's mind deserved 13 sort of an extra layer of pre-approval?

14 A In my opinion, I think the political sensitivity associated with the election
15 created an added layer of complexity to our mission space, which is already complex.
16 So, in addition to making sure that we were prioritizing identifying threats to -- I would 17 say threats during the election season and protecting First Amendment-protected 18 activity.

19 We also had to be conscious that the work that we did in the space could be 20 perceived as potentially politically influenced. And so that added layer of review, in my 21 opinion, was focused on ensuring that the work that we did was, you know, objective, 22 accurate, and appropriate.

23 [REDACTED] Oh, and I meant to ask, I think we're going to go a little bit over if 24 that's all right. I was thinking if we could have -- you know, obviously we have that hard 25 stop at 1 p.m. Is that all right with you, Ms. Dobitsch?

1           Ms. Dobitsch. Can we -- what time is the next briefing?

2           Ms. Rapoport. At 1 o'clock.

3           Ms. Dobitsch. Yeah. I'd like to eat lunch. So, if it's possible, could we end at 4 12:30?

5           [REDACTED] It starts at 1:30 or 1? I thought it was maybe 1.

6           [REDACTED] I can look.

7           [REDACTED] Okay. 12:30 is good. We'll try to speed along here.

8           Ms. Dobitsch. Okay.

9           BY [REDACTED]:

10           Q Let me ask you about -- you mentioned the level of sensitivity surrounding 11 the election. Is that because of claims coming from, you know, the President of the 12 United States and within his administration about the election potentially being stolen, 13 this in the lead-up to the actual election?

14           A We had observed, among domestic violent extremists, whether in online
15 forums or in collaboration with our Federal partners, conspiracy theories associated with 16 the outcome of the election, the election itself, and narratives that could mobilize people 17 to violence.

18           We had seen some instances over the summer that conspiracy theories associated 19 with the election, and just the election itself was serving as the potential mobilizer to 20 violence.

21           And so that was the primary factor entering the election season that drove us to 22 assess that there could be violence at events related to the election throughout that 23 timeframe.

24           Q You mentioned also that this -- I think you said that this memorandum was,
25 in part, a response also to the scrutiny that was -- that followed from Portland. The

1 leadership change occurred in August, and this memo came out obviously right at the tail
2 end of October, so to be in effect, in essence, in November.

3 So there were months in between there where civil disturbance could've sprouted
4 and there wouldn't have been this extra layer. Can you explain to me, I guess, why the 5 delay -- did the civil disturbance and the perception of scrutiny or the scrutiny at all 6 contribute to the release of this memorandum, or was it based purely on the fact that an 7 election was coming up?

8 A I'm not aware that the dissemination of this memo was related to the 9 scrutiny that we had faced. My understanding is that the threats associated with the 10 election, again, were very sensitive in nature. It involved looking at -- or differentiating 11 between First Amendment-protected activity and threats.

12 And so, because of the complexity of the environment and the sensitivity 13 associated with ensuring the integrity of our elections, the layers of review were 14 perceived as necessary to make sure that we were doing that.

15 Q The level of review where it should go through you, that you instituted in 16 response to the scrutiny over the summer. Is that right?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Got it. You did that despite not agreeing with that scrutiny. Is that 19 correct?

20 A I don't disagree or agree with the scrutiny. I instituted reviewing 21 open-source intelligence reports because we disseminated three open-source intelligence
22 reports on American journalists, which I did not think was appropriate.

23 And it was clear to me, in looking back at those examples, that our processes and 24 procedures were not in a sufficient place to appropriately review those reports before 25 they were disseminated.

1 Q The memorandum notes that, quote, to ensure timeliness, end quote, those 2 reviewing offices -- and it lists there -- would have expanded hours, be on call, and hold 3 daily calls.

4 Did this extra step of pre-approval delay the process? Taking out judgment as to 5 whether it's good or not, did it delay the process of approving OSIRs?

6 A [Inaudible] in the run-up to 6 January. I don't think that's what contributed 7 to the delay in our reporting.

8 Q So, if we can, let's talk about the January 5th draft OSIR and about the sort of 9 email traffic. I think they're captured in exhibits 3, 4, and 5 in what appears -- but I'd like 10 your explanation -- to be confusion between the legal division and the drafters of the 11 OSIR, whether, you know, it was rejected.

12 What is your understanding, maybe generally, and then I'll ask more specifically,
13 as to why that draft OSIR was not approved in time in order to be disseminated before
14 January 6th?

15 A If you could just give me a moment, I'm pulling up the exhibits now.

16 Q Of course. No problem.

17 Ms. Rapoport. You're fine. I got it.

18 Ms. Dobitsch. Okay. I have them in front of me. Would you mind, please, 19 repeating the question?

20 BY [REDACTED]:

21 Q Yes. In essence, I wanted you to give me your top-line understanding of 22 why the January 5th OSIR did not get approved for dissemination before January 6th.

23 A This is just my opinion. My opinion was that I don't believe that the -- the 24 legal guidance was clear and that the collectors did not understand the extent to which 25 there was approval to move forward.

1           As I read through these emails, it seems as though the preference from our 2 Intelligence Law Division was to communicate via phone, which is very difficult for our 3 collectors, who are often operating on different shifts and transferring information
4 between shifts and people.

5           And so, again, that guidance was never formally documented or communicated
6 except for across the collectors. And you'll see in the emails that there's an effort by the 7 collectors to try to recap what guidance was being provided by the Intelligence Law
8 Division.

9           And so there's a lot of back and forth on the capturing, because it seems as 10 though there's a preference to communicate that feedback over the phone by -- in 11 writing.

12           Q     Did anyone within OSCO -- I think I said that right -- did anyone reject it, say 13 that this did not meet reporting -- or guidance for dissemination?

14           A     I -- I don't have the specifics on this exact open-source intelligence report. I
15 do know that there was quite a bit of back and forth between the collectors to the extent 16 that it met the guidelines -- or met the reporting threshold and that the collectors, when 17 there was a disagreement on that, that they were encouraged to reach out to ILD and 18 their oversight offices to help them navigate that decision.

19           Q     Are you aware of anyone claiming that leadership kept it from being 20 published?

21           A     Leadership in terms of I&A leadership or the Intelligence Law Division
22 leadership or any leadership?

23           Q     Yeah. I don't know if the members within ILD would be considered
24 leadership. I kind of just want to -- if you could define that for me, because there's 25 sentiment, I believe, that they should have kept -- the analysts should have pushed more

1 to have it published, but that it -- they should've fought more with OSCO and leadership
2 to have it published.

3 And so I don't know what's meant by leadership. I'm wondering if you have 4 heard that same sort of sentiment.

5 A So, at the I&A leadership level, which I would consider me and above, the 6 deputy under secretary and above, I was not aware of the back and forth until well after 7 this product was published.

8 Q Okay. Let's talk about the sorts of intelligence that you were made privy to 9 that you had seen. Were you aware, before January 6th, about the information
10 regarding the tunnels, that the uptick in visits to the map system of the underground map
11 system of the Capitol and a discussion on, you know, TheDonald.Win and other forums, 12 regarding the underground tunnels? Had you been made aware of that?

13 A No.

14 Q So is it your understanding, though, that I&A did disseminate that 15 information to partners?

16 A I'm not aware that we disseminated that specific information. I know that 17 we engaged in engagements that highlighted our concern about the prospects for 18 violence more generally as we entered the election certification. But I'm not personally 19 aware that that specific information was shared.

20 Q I think you told me earlier that intelligence you would review if it were 21 disseminated, that that is within your, sort of -- I don't know if it's within your job
22 description, but that is something that you do. Is that right?

23 A For finished intelligence. It's not documented in guidance that I approve 24 raw intelligence before it's disseminated.

25 Q Yeah. But I do recall asking if you ever -- raw intelligence came across your

1 desk, and you mentioned to me that if -- I believe you mentioned to me that if it were 2 disseminated in some way, that, yes, it would.

3 A No. My statement was that I rarely, if ever, see raw intelligence reporting
4 before it's disseminated. In the exception from December of 2020 through January 6th,
5 separate from the OSIRs that went through this process that was dictated in October of 6 2020, I personally reviewed OSIRs before they were disseminated.

7 Q So, in terms of after -- and I think that may have been the distinction that I'm 8 forgetting -- you review raw intelligence that's been disseminated, after?

9 A I think, let's -- let's change the word. I do not review raw intelligence. I 10 read raw intelligence once it's disseminated, more as a receiver, as a customer, than as 11 part of a process.

12 Q So, if there is dissemination from I&A to external partners regarding this 13 tunnel information, you may or may not -- well, you said you don't recall -- you may or 14 may not have read it after the fact?

15 A We never -- we never published. That was not -- my understanding of that 16 information was never formally disseminated, and so I never saw it because it was never 17 serialized in any sort of formal report.

18 Q Right. So formal would not include an email?

19 A No.

20 Q Were you aware, before January 6th, of the rhetoric involving storming the 21 Capitol, occupying the Capitol? Did that make it to your eyes?

22 A Other than what I read in a political -- Politico article the day before, you
23 know, generally summarizing, I think, what we understood to be broad awareness of 24 threats against the Capitol. That was the specificity I had.

25 Q Let's go back to the tunnels actually. How about today, as you sit here

1       today, are you aware that analysts within I&A were in possession, had received, had 2       reviewed, had read indications about the tunnel that I had already explained on the 3       record a couple of questions ago?

4               A     Yes, I'm aware.

5               Q     Okay.   Do you consider that to -- looking at that intelligence, do you
6       consider that to have been a constituted -- or contained true threats or incitement to 7       violence and not hyperbole?

8               A     I can only speak retrospectively which is, because individuals stormed the 9       Capitol, I would think that it is not hyperbole.   Although, to this day, I don't think we can 10      clarify whether the individuals that the collectors were looking at actually were the 11      perpetrators of the attack.   So they could still be hyperbole in many cases.

12              Q     Do you believe that an OSIR should have been put out about that piece of 13      intelligence?

14              A     Yes.

15              Q     Do you have any -- well -- and is that -- okay.   Tell me why.   Why do you 16      think it should have?

17              A     Because I believe that while the collector wasn't able to make a 18      determination about true threats, going back to those other categories, I see them as 19      equally as important in examining the environment for which our collectors are 20      operating.

21              And we have repeatedly articulated that we were in a heightened threat 22      environment in which we believed that violence was likely to occur at election-related 23      events.

24              And so I believe that, even without making that determination about the true 25      threat or incitement, that the heightened threat environment and -- really should have

1 informed our dissemination of that information.

2 Q Let's talk about the training that I think you mentioned was instituted soon
3 after the leadership change, in the summer of 2020.

4 Talk me through how that training went, what was sort of the purpose of the 5 training -- in terms of the guidance for dissemination, what was the message from that 6 training as to how analysts should be thinking about these requirements?

7 A I think very broadly the training was focused on ensuring that the entire 8 workforce had a common understanding and interpretation of our oversight guidelines,
9 primarily focused on protecting First Amendment activities.

10 After or -- either just before or just after the memo was disseminated on October 11 30th, there was required training that was specific to our open-source collection, and that 12 was geared toward the true threats and incitement.

13 Q You mentioned that -- you said that it was made clear that you were still 14 under a threatened -- heightened -- excuse me -- threat environment. How was that 15 made clear?

16 A Our Counterterrorism Mission Center had disseminated multiple finished 17 intelligence products highlighting the heightened threat environment in the run-up to the 18 election.

19 Q And post-election? You said run-up to the election.

20 A Run-up to the election, yeah. So I believe we disseminated multiple 21 intelligence reports that highlighted that we believed that violence was likely to occur 22 during election-related events.

23 Q I see. So not -- you're not saying specifically just for the election, but for all 24 events related and you would, I guess, consider January --

25 A The election season.

1           Q    Season. Got it. And you said that there was confusion, though, about 2 whether it was a heightened threat environment or not and whether that third sort of 3 prong was applicable. Why was there confusion if, as you mentioned, that was made 4 clear?

5           A    There was no confusion from my perspective that there was a heightened
6 threat environment. It was -- the confusion was whether or not that was still a 7 benchmark to be able to report.

8           And the sense was that that was not enough, that the heightened threat 9 environment alone was not sufficient to produce intelligence reports that would speak to 10 this problem set, that the focus was on the true threats and incitement.

11          Q    Was that said explicitly? You said the sense was that number 3 was not 12 enough. Why was that the sense? Was that said by people at the training? Why?

13          A    The training that was provided to our open source collectors, as it relates to 14 reporting on the election season, made clear that the focus was on true threats and 15 incitement and didn't incorporate context associated with providing intelligence under a 16 heightened threat environment.

17          Q    So it wasn't expressly said that 3 did not apply? It just, by omission, it did 18 not mention 3? It basically only mentioned 1, the training?

19          A    Yes. And I think, in certain aspects of the training, there were some -- there 20 were some differences that were applied, for example, previously as it relates to an 21 individual's ability to have reasonable belief that they're collecting the information to 22 support a national, departmental mission.

23          Previously we had said that a junior officer, for example, could rely on a more 24 experienced officer or manager to help them articulate a reasonable belief, but in this 25 process, that had changed, requiring that the individual alone had to produce a

1 reasonable belief.

2 So there was a change in how that standard or guideline applied, in addition to the 3 true threats and incitement, and in one iteration of the training, it was unclear, as I had 4 said, about who can actually determined -- determine what a heightened threat 5 environment is.

6 And it articulated that things like a finished intelligence product or a National 7 Terrorism Advisory System Bulletin was not sufficient alone to make that determination,
8 but it didn't make clear what was sufficient to make that determination.

9 Q Was that wrong? It sounds as though it is sufficient, in your mind, that you
10 put out, that it was a heightened threat environment.

11 A Yeah, I believe it was sufficient.

12 Q Right. Were you aware of these deficiencies in the training prior to 13 January 6th?

14 A No, I was not aware. I did not participate in the training that was specific 15 to the collectors in the run-up to the election.

16 Q When did you become aware of how that -- the implications from that 17 training or how it was perceived?

18 A I believe it was after January 6th when I did a review of what was provided
19 to my officers throughout and in the run-up to January 6th.

20 Q I think you mentioned that you had only seen indications of 21 storming-the-Capitol rhetoric, you know, from media reports, and I think you said the day 22 before. Would those -- do you believe an OSIR should have been put out for those 23 indications?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And is your answer the same as before, you believe the -- which of the three,

1 I'm sorry, of the guidance disseminations do you feel is the easiest for it to fall under?

2 A I think it falls primarily under the risks and vulnerabilities associated with a
3 heightened threat environment.

4 Q And there were also obviously open source indications about Proud Boy
5 attendance and other groups associated with violence. Do you believe that those 6 might've been captured by an OSIR dealing with the second criteria on here?

7 A If there was information online that indicated that a Proud Boys member 8 was seeking to commit violence, then absolutely it would fall within that second category.
9 I'm not aware of the level of specificity that the collectors had at the time related to 10 known threat actors, but absolutely it would have applied.

11 Q As you sit there today, have you seen posts by members of those groups that 12 you would consider to be -- to fall under the requirements?

13 A I don't review posts, so I do believe that the collectors do report on 14 individuals that claim affiliation with groups that have previously committed acts of 15 violence.

3 BY [REDACTED]:

4 Q Were you aware before January 6th of the December 21st email -- I don't 5 know if I have this. Well, yeah, I think it's part of the OIG -- forwarded it to CETC and 6 asking them to do additional research into, you know, criminal activity and possible
7 violence?

8 A Do you have a page number?

9 Q It's, unfortunately, in the OIG report. But let me see.

10 Do you know that chart, it's at the back where it has a little bit of a timeline? I'll 11 try to find the page for you.

12 But I don't know if you're familiar, it refers to as early as, I think, yeah, December
13 21st, indications being forwarded to CETC, I believe from members of the Field
14 Operations Division. You can see it, I think, on page 50.

15 A Okay. I've got it. Can you please repeat your question?

16 Q Yeah. I'm just -- were you aware that as early as December 21st, it was 17 forwarded to CETC asking them to, you know, look into references to criminal activity on 18 possible violence that may be of interest for State and local parties in the NCR? Were 19 you aware of that?

20 A No.

21 Q Okay. Do you have any knowledge now about why if -- what CETC did 22 about that?

23 A No, other than what is in the document that I have reviewed. That's as 24 much as I know.

25 Q Okay. Do you have maybe insight into why that didn't lead to any OSIRs

1 or -- right, why it didn't lead to any OSIRs?

2 A My understanding at the time was those -- what we call tips or leads
3 provided by the Field Operations Division did not meet the individual collectors threshold
4 for reporting.

5 Q Did you think that was an incorrect determination?

6 A I can't speak to those specific tips and leads. I didn't see them.

7 Q You still haven't -- you still to this day haven't seen them?

8 A The tips and leads, no.

9 Q Okay. There's an OSCO document in the OIG report that shows members
10 tracking January 6th threats from December 29th to January 2nd. Do you know why 11 if -- do you know if anything was done about that and, if not, why not?

12 A Do you have the page? 44?

13 Q Thank you. I appreciate it.

14 A Can you repeat that one more time? If you don't mind just starting with a 15 page number, that'd be very helpful.

16 Q Yeah.

17 A If you have it. If you have it.

18 Q No, I don't. I know, of course, I would tell you if I did. And I understand 19 there's a lot in the report, so I understand it.

20 I don't see it in 44. But there's a document that members within OSCO had put 21 together tracking the threats that they were seeing on January 6th, between 22 December 29th and January 2nd. The OIG at least seems to imply that nothing was 23 done with that document. And, obviously, no OSIR was put out about it.

24 Do you have any visibility into what happened there?

25 A No, I don't.

1 Q Okay. So you have no idea why that didn't lead to an OSIR?

2 A Again, I'm just looking at the chart. I mean, much of this into this day
3 probably doesn't need that threshold. For example, an individual claiming there would 4 be not enough law enforcement officers to stop the number of armed people arriving in 5 the area. Again, I don't know that that is a sufficient amount of information that would 6 be considered reportable.

7 Q How did the threats to occupy and overtake State capitols that obviously had 8 happened in the -- in the months preceding January 6th -- how were you -- how were you 9 viewing that, if at all, in terms of the environment out there, or the kidnapping plot for 10 the Governor of Michigan? And do you think your analysts were privy to that sort of 11 information out there, that sort of picture of -- threat picture when they were looking at 12 these -- this intelligence?

13 A The threats that occurred over the summer to the State capitol?

14 Q Yes.

15 A I think the analysts were certainly privy. The analysts produced multiple 16 finished intelligence reports as it relates to, you know, the activity that we had seen
17 related to the threat. From the collector's perspective, I think that they had kind of the 18 strategic insight, but they did not have the specific investigative reporting associated with 19 those activities.

20 Q Do you think that -- is it proper for an analyst maybe to see whether -- in 21 deciding whether, let's say, in the cases to storm the Capitol are true or not to have 22 that -- see it through the lens of what obviously had taken place over the summer, sort of 23 dry runs by some of the same groups that were -- posted these things on social media?
24 Can that inform or should that inform an analyst's determination?

25 A It should inform both the collector and an analyst's determination.

1           Q    So is it fair to say you didn't have any input into whether any of the pieces of 2 information that we talked about or that made it into the hands of people at I&A, you
3 didn't have any input into whether they merited and OSIR or not?

4           A    No.

5           Q    No intelligence products were produced regarding January 6th before the 6 day. Is that right?

7           A    No raw intelligence products. We had finished intelligence products that 8 highlighted the threats during the election season, not specific to January 6th, but 9 generally to election-related events.

10          Q    Right. When was the last sort of OSIR dealing with election-related events, 11 if you know?

12          A    I don't know.

13          Q    You don't have a ballpark for me?

14          A    No.

15          Q    Do you feel comfortable saying it wasn't in 2021?

16          A    At all in 2021?

17          Q    No. I meant before -- it's all before January 6th, it has to be. So I -- was it 18 in 2020, the last one before January 6th, do you feel comfortable saying that?

19          A    I honestly don't -- I don't even know if we produced an OSIR specific to 20 election-related threats. Most of the intelligence that we did related to election threats 21 was actually in the cyber field from a raw intelligence standpoint. I'm not aware of 22 specific OSIRs that were related to elections.

23          Q    Oh, I -- because I thought you were making that distinction. Okay. So
24 then regarding January 6th, no intelligence fraud -- I thought we were -- no intelligence
25 products were produced regarding January 6th before the day, correct?

1           A    Yes.

2           Q    Okay. I'd like to give you an opportunity to explain here why, in as 3 comprehensive terms as you can, citing whatever number of reasons you think 4 contributed to why none were produced, approved, and disseminated?

5           A    Raw intelligence reports.

6           Q    I think you answered that no intelligence reports were produced regarding 7 January 6th. So that's my question, why? Why not?

8           A    So from the finished intelligence perspective, I think our sense was that we 9 had warned of the threat to election-related events like January 6th. And as we 10 approached the date, we did not have specific or credible information that would have 11 warranted an update to that analytic language had already been disseminated, to include 12 a week prior to 6 January.

13           From the raw intelligence perspective, I don't believe reports were disseminated,
14 because the scope and nature of the reporting that I&A was disseminating was refocused 15 on specific documented collection requirements and on identifying true threats and 16 incitement. And I think collectors were hesitant to collect information that they weren't 17 certain met that threshold.

18           Q    You feel comfortable saying that the election-related event products were 19 sufficient, although you can't tell me whether the last one was in August, September, 20 October?

21           A    No. Finished intelligence I can tell you exactly when it was. The last 22 finished intelligence product we wrote on threats related to election events was 31
23 January -- or 31 December. It was disseminated, and it was explicit that there were 24 threats to the election season.

25           I cannot tell you what raw intelligence report was disseminated on elections and

1     when the last report was.   We produced dozens, if not hundreds of reports, on a weekly
2     and monthly basis.

3           Q     Got it.   You said that there was no specific credible information or at least 4     that -- do you still believe that's the case after having -- I don't know if you have reviewed,
5     I guess, all of the intelligence that made it to I&A and to other agencies and departments.
6     I guess, given what you have reviewed, as you sit there today, do you believe that there
7     was specific and credible information out there that a, let's say, joint intelligence bulletin
8     would have been helpful or would have been appropriate to put out?

9           A     I think there was sufficient information to assess that this election
10    certification was a target of violence.   However, in my opinion, I don't believe that a 11    product would have been sufficient, because most of the intelligence that we saw 12    occurred primarily in the week running up to 6 January.   And so, you know, from my 13    perspective, law enforcement's ability to prevent what had happened on January 6th
14    requires months of planning.   And I don't think we had any specific or credible, like I
15    said, plot for which we could help them mitigate.   And I would say that the information
16    we had at the time was something that I understood that Capitol Police and others also 17    had access to to inform their mitigation efforts.

18          Q     So it sounds -- I mean, we're talking about a joint intelligence bulletin.   Do
19    you think that it would have mattered if an OSIR had been produced -- let's say the 20    January 5th OSIR -- if that had actually made it to dissemination.   Would that have been 21    helpful?

22          A     My understanding, again, of that specific OSIR was about an individual
23    traveling with a gun to a parking lot outside of D.C.   I don't believe that information 24    would have been sufficient to make a determination about whether or not someone was 25    going to storm the Capitol.

1           Q    So let's talk about the other OSIRs that you think should have been put out,
2           ones about the tunnels, ones about storming the Capitol.   Would that have mattered, do
3           you believe, if an OSIR had been put out on those?

4           A    I do believe that the references to the Capitol map, to me, you know, from 5           my professional opinion, is concerning, and that probably would have been something
6           specific enough to disseminate to our partners and Capitol Police.   But, again, you know,
7           my understanding was that they also had that information.   But I believe we should have 8           put out an OSIR on the tactics and techniques that were potentially being considered to 9           storm the Capitol.

10          Q    You don't think there's some value in having a joint intelligence bulletin
11          being put out by some of the major Federal agencies who are tasked with this work, FBI, 12          and DHS, I&A, that -- you know, you mentioned, you know, Capitol Police had this 13          information.   You don't think that putting out that warning would have sent a message
14          and would have conveyed a sense of urgency that might have been helpful in protecting 15          the Capitol that day?

16          A    I absolutely believe it would have been valuable and would have contributed 17          to a sense of urgency.   I don't know that it would have actually made a difference in 18          terms of the operational planning, in part because, again, we did not have a level of 19          specificity to warn us in terms of specific access point, a time and target of the attack, a 20          tactic being used.   It was a general -- general threat environment.

21               And I think for us the miscalculation was that we believed that there was a 22          common understanding across the U.S. Government, across our State and local partners, 23          and what was being reported in the news that violence was going to occur on 6 January.
24          And so, clearly, that -- that general belief that many people thought violence was going to 25          occur did not spur action.

1           Q    What was your understanding as to whether -- you know, there was also a 2   belief by some that the same level of violence, skirmishes between protesters and 3   counterprotesters from MAGA I and MAGA II, November 14th and December 12th, that 4   January 6th would just be a repetition of that, that that's the sort of level of violence.
5   When you say violence on January 6th, that that's what the expectation was and not that 6   January 6th would be different in scope and severity, and that Congress itself would be 7   the target, which is what an intelligence bulletin put out by U.S. Capitol Police, released
8   internally, put out, did say that the focus would not be protesters and counterprotesters,
9   that the focus would be Congress itself.

10           What was your understanding going into January 6th as to -- you said that, you
11   know, everyone kind of understood there'd be a level of violence.   What did you think 12   about that level of violence in comparison to MAGA I and MAGA II?

13           A    I'm not personally tracking what the level of violence was on what you're 14   referring to as MAGA I and MAGA II.   I know that in the run-up to the certification of the 15   elections, I asked my team to pull information we had to understand to what extent the 16   violence was likely to occur.   We evaluated that decision, which was noted in the chart 17   on the indicators as it relates to the events, and that many of the indicators had been 18   observed.   I think a key distinction was the week of, the Mayor of D.C. asked for a light 19   law enforcement footprint and asked for counterprotesters not to attend the day's 20   events.   Those are two pretty significant indicators that were swaying in the opposite 21   direction in the run-up to the election.

22           Our standing analytic line was that often the violence occurs against protesters
23   and counterprotesters and against law enforcement.   So if the Mayor was announcing a 24   light law enforcement footprint and encouraging counterprotesters not to attend, those 25   are two major triggers that we would rely on to make determinations about the nature of

1 the violence.

2 Q Well, so that first part, were you aware that she had requested support from 3 the National Guard?

4 A I am not aware.

5 Q Okay. I mean --

6 A I was not aware at the time. I think now obviously that has come out, but I
7 was not aware at the time. My understanding was, again, that there was a request for a 8 light law enforcement footprint that day.

9 Q Yeah. And I believe also that the chief of police put out and all hands on 10 deck for every member of the Metropolitan Police Department to work that day.

11 A I'm not -- that, to my knowledge is not public. I'm only speaking to what 12 the Mayor had announced publicly.

13 Q Yeah. And I guess, what is your posi- -- or belief or thoughts about the fact
14 that, you know, different departments did posture differently, right? The Metropolitan 15 Police Department postured in a way where, as we looking back can see, they were able 16 to respond quickly to assist Capitol Police with the breach. Whereas, Capitol Police 17 postured differently, as we can see, than that, obviously, not, so successfully.

18 Do you think it's right that everybody sort of understood the same level of urgency
19 and gravity when it came to the potential for violence on January 6th?

20 A I don't think I understand your question. You're asking me if it's right that 21 everyone understood the same level of urgency?

22 Q No. If it's correct. Right? Right isn't morally right. Is it accurate? I
23 believe you did mention that earlier that you thought that -- I guess I'm wondering if you 24 still think that, if you still think that everyone did share the same understanding of the 25 threat picture heading into January 6th?

1           A    No, I think that's what we determined was not the case. In the run-up to it,
2   our perception was that we thought that our partners generally understood the extent to 3   which violence would occur on that day. After the fact, our interpretation is that our 4   strategic warning didn't resonate and that the shared sense of urgency and the prospect
5   of violence were not shared.

6           Q    So I want to talk to you about exhibit No. 7. And while you're flipping to it,
7   I will, just for the record, it's a letter from an intelligence operations specialist. I want to 8   use the right -- well, let me ask you. Who was the author of this letter?

9           A    My understanding -- this is the first time I've seen this letter as part of this 10   interview. And my understanding is that this is a very junior officer in the 11   Counterterrorism Mission Center.

12          Q    What's his or her name?

13          A    I don't believe it's appropriate to share their name.

14          Q    No worries. I'm going to call -- I'm going to say she. I was going to ask if I
15   can have a gender, but it's fine. I don't think for the record it matters.

16                So it's a letter from an intelligence operation specialist talking about how she 17   came across what she called 500 pages worth of credible indications of violence for 18   January 6th as early as December 20th on her own personal time without searching for it, 19   approached the senior member at CTMC with the information, and was told it would be 20   related to OSCO. She goes on to say she submitted the names of several platforms, 21   including thedonald.win and Parlor, as being full of these indications. Following up daily 22   as time went on, brought up the time sensitivity if there was any hope that a joint 23   intelligence bulletin might be produced or at least memorialized in an OSIR. And 24   ultimately says she gave a briefing that was conveyed internally to leadership about the 25   potential threat, but that nothing was pushed out.

1 Are the factual claims, as far as you know them, in the letter accurate?

2 A I have no idea. My understanding of this was never even raised to the 3 leadership of the Counterterrorism Mission Center. So I'm not -- I have no idea whether 4 or not this is accurate.

5 Q The letter appears to be dated from August. You had not received -- you're 6 over her. I know she's a junior officer, but being a member of -- she's a part of your 7 team, under your direction, correct?

8 A This individual would probably be four or five layers below my position.

9 Q Right. But still under your umbrella, correct?

10 A Yeah.

11 Q Do you have any -- why was this letter not shared with you?

12 A I don't even know who it was addressed to. I don't know where it went.

13 Q Well, it was provided by your department, so it obviously went to I&A at 14 some point.

15 A Or didn't. It could have gone to OIG. I've never seen the report, so I don't 16 know where it went.

17 Q Yeah. But this document was not provided to us by the OIG, it was 18 provided by you guys.

19 But, okay, no worries. If she doesn't know, she doesn't know. That's not a 20 problem.

21 How about, are you aware of the briefing that she talks about that she says was 22 given to senior leadership? And I do think that that is also referred to in the OIG as 23 having happened. Are you familiar with that?

24 A Do you know where in the letter does it say that? I do think I know what 25 it's talking about. I just want to reread it again.

1           Q    Sure, no problem.  I -- you know, it's obviously three pages, and it's not -- I
2   don't know if I can give you an easy reference.  But I'll try to find it along with you, if I
3   can, as fast as I can.  It should be by the bottom.  It's one of the last things she says she 4   does.  I think maybe even --

5           A    I think I found it.

6           Q    Okay, perfect.  Yeah, first, full paragraph on page 4.

7           A    Yeah.  Found it.  Okay.  Can you please repeat your question?

8           Q    I'm sorry.  You're reading it, you said?

9           A    Yeah, I have it.  Could you please repeat your question?

10          Q    Oh, okay.  I missed your question.

11               Yeah.  Are you aware about that briefing that was given to leadership?  And let 12   me know if you know whether it transpired or not or whether you were a part of it.  Like 13   I said, I believe the OIG indicates in the report -- it mentions a briefing to leadership about 14   the threat sort of landscape.

15          A    Yeah.  I'm aware.

16          Q    Were you a part of it?

17          A    Yes.

18          Q    Okay.  Was this junior -- or who gave the briefing?

19          A    Intelligence analysts from the Counterterrorism Mission Center.

20          Q    Okay.  Did this junior officer participate or was present at all?

21          A    I don't know.  I don't know who the identity is of this.  This is redacted.

22          Q    Okay.  Oh, I thought when I asked for her name, you said you didn't feel 23   comfortable giving it.  Is your answer that you actually don't know the name?

24          A    I know the name of the individual who gave me the briefing.  I do not know
25   if that individual is the person in this letter.

1           Q     Right. So when I asked you about the identity of the letter, your answer
2     was I don't feel comfortable giving it. You didn't say, I actually don't know who it is.

3           A     I think I know who it is, but I currently have only ever received a letter that is 4     redacted. It doesn't have the person's name.

5           Q     Okay. So --

6           A     I do not know for certain who this person is. And my understanding is that 7     the individual is very junior, and I don't feel that it's appropriate to share that name based 8     on the junior nature of the person.

9           Q     But I just want to make clear because we're on the record. Do you know
10    the identity of the person or do you not know the identity of the person?

11          A     I do not know the identity of the person in this letter.

12          Q     Okay. So you also then do not know whether they're a junior analyst?

13          A     My understanding is -- what I understand is that this person is junior. Like I
14    said, I -- I am surmising, I am analyzing this letter based on what they say in this letter that 15    this person is a junior officer.

16          Q     Okay. Got it. Right. So I just want to use the same -- the same way you
17    do not know the identity, you do not know, the way you're using it, that whether it's a 18    junior analyst. You are speculating or surmising as to both. Is that fair?

19          A     Yes, I am speculating who the author of this letter is.

20          Q     Perfect. I just want to be consistent across questions.

21                So can you tell me what was conveyed to you, what was the top line message
22    conveyed to you at this briefing?

23          A     The briefing was I asked my team to pull a product that we had done
24    analyzing the indicators of violence in Portland and apply those indicators to the events
25    that were taking place on 6 January. And so the intelligence officer provided their

1 assessment on the extent to which those indicators had observed in the run-up to 6
2 January.

3 Q And what was the substance of what was provided to you?

4 A It's noted in the OIG report in the charts that most of the indicators that we
5 had identified for Portland had been observed.

6 Q The chart, as we had talked earlier, has a number that had not been 7 identified as Portland. Is that chart accurate, in essence?

8 A I have to pull up the chart.

9 Q No worries.

10 A But I believe it's probably generally -- generally accurate.

11 Q Okay. You don't disagree with their characterizations of whether those 12 categories are met or unmet as it pertains to the summer?

13 A No.

14 Q So when it was presented to you, was it presented to you as more of the 15 indicators are met leading into January 6th than they had over the summer?

16 A Yes.

17 Q What, if anything, did you and leadership do about that, having received 18 that --

19 A We briefed it. We briefed it to our leadership, to DHS leadership.

20 Q The Secretary?

21 A The deputy secretary.

22 Q Okay. Who was that at the time?

23 A Mr. Ken Cuccinelli.

24 Q Got it. Did you ever consider putting out anything, a product of any sort, to 25 your partners conveying what you had been told at that briefing?

1           A    We considered it, though, this was the day prior and we don't have the 2   ability to turn a product around usually within a day in order to get the appropriate
3   clearances and coordination that's typically required of a finished intelligence product.

4           Q    Is that what stopped you?   You said you considered it.   So does that mean
5   that you believed it to be possible, or was that the only impediment to putting forward 6   something?

7           A    We considered taking the exact same product we did for Portland and 8   producing it for 6 January, but we were not capable of being able to turn around the 9   product in a timely manner for which it could have provided warning before the morning
10   of January 6th.

11          Q    Was that the only motivation or -- was that the only thing stopping you is my 12   question?   Was there anything else that led to -- I'm sorry?

13          A    That and the lack of actual documented reporting.   My understanding was 14   we didn't receive any raw intelligence collection except for an IAR from FBI the morning 15   of.

16          Q    Okay.   So the lack of OSIRs that your own I&A or other agencies had put out 17   factored into not putting something out that day?

18          A    It was both the lack of raw intelligence reporting articulating a specific threat
19   to 6 January, our access to those reports, and our inability to be able to turn around a 20   product with that period of time with the requirements that are in place for producing 21   finishing intelligence.

22          Q    If those OSIRs that you believed would have appropriately met the guidance,
23   the dissemination guidance, if those had been produced, do you think that putting out 24   something -- that you guys would have put out something, or would the late hour still 25   have stopped you from doing so?

1           A    I think it depends on, you know, if we look -- if I look back at the time -- if we
2    had produced OSIRs related to, I think, the maps that we had seen related to the Capitol
3    Buildings, and the more of that specificity to me that indicated that there could actually 4    be a plan in place to storm the Capitol, and we had done that at least a few days in 5    advance, we would have put a product out.

6           Q    My last question before I turn it over to my colleague. I know we still have 7    18 minutes. If we can talk about exhibit No. 1. It's an email from you asking about the 8    FBI's threat picture on January 3rd, 2021. That's the day of the email. I'm wondering, 9    what caused you to ask that question?

10          A    Again, I think, yeah, as we entered the day of January 6th, our sense was 11    that violence was likely to occur on the 6th of January, but we didn't know what type of 12    violence or how substantial the violence would be. We were -- it was what we call a 13    hunch, obviously, understanding that the threat environment at the time and the amount 14    of mis, dis, and malinformation online associated with the outcome of the election, that 15    the environment and the conditions were ripe for violence. However, we did not have 16    reporting indicating that there was a specific threat to the Capitol at that time. And so 17    most of our efforts were focused on acquiring that information, whether it be from our 18    FBI partners or our State and local partners.

19          Q    Am I reading the response correctly that the FBI had not settled on sort of a 20    threat level written or unwritten for the week? And, in fact, it sounds like the person 21    corresponding with you conveyed -- that they had conveyed a less of a concern with the 22    groups showing up to protest and more of a concern for violence between protesters and 23    counterprotesters. Is that how you read it as well?

24          A    Yes.

25          Q    Were you surprised that you had not received a comprehensive threat

1 assessment for January 6th from the FBI?

2 A I wasn't -- I don't think we would have expected a comprehensive threat
3 assessment. I was more surprised that we didn't receive things like the SIR that was 4 published and the IAR that was published earlier. It seems as though they did have 5 some information available to them that they did not disseminate to us.

6 Q And we talked a little bit earlier about you weren't quite sure about the 7 levels of violence or the types of violence at the first two rallies. But so this concern 8 about less with the groups and more for violence between protesters and 9 counterprotesters, is that how you also envisioned leading into January 6th was the main 10 concern for violence?

11 A Yes, that was what we had seen throughout the summer and at most large
12 protests was that most of the violence, as I had mentioned earlier, related to the Mayor's 13 public statements was that we saw most of the violence occur against law enforcement 14 or against protesters and counterprotesters.

15 Q Okay. And you still -- did you guys still maintain that belief that law 16 enforcement were potential targets for the protesters -- the demonstrators protesting 17 the election certification?

18 A I'm sorry, can you repeat that one more time?

19 Q Law enforcement, were they still targets? You mentioned that over the 20 summer --

21 A Yeah.

22 Q -- you saw not only violence with counterprotesters but violence directed 23 towards law enforcement. Was that your understanding of the threat picture dealing 24 with these demonstrators?

25 A Yes, and that I believe that was what was also disseminated in our 31

1 December intelligence report on the topic.

2 Q Anti-law enforcement sentiment?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Okay. My colleague now has some questions for you.

5 BY [REDACTED]:

6 Q Thanks for your patience. I have a number of questions. I'm not 7 sure -- I'm fairly certain I'm not going to get to all my questions, so I'll try to hit several 8 that relate to the stuff that we've already talked about, Deputy Under Secretary, if it's 9 okay.

10 Thanks, [REDACTED].

11 So going back to your role as a consumer or a reviewer -- and I apologize to go
12 back to this. I know we've done this repeatedly, but I just want to make sure that I ask 13 you a question about this. As a consumer or reviewer of raw intel while you were 14 deputy under secretary, could you list the number of times a piece of I&A raw intel that 15 you read, either as a consumer or reviewer, gave you pause; in other words, it 16 wasn't -- you didn't think it was particularly useful, it may have been improperly collected, 17 or that there were other tradecraft concerns with that piece of raw intel?

18 A So in terms of my viewing the raw intelligence, generally, I would never have 19 pause as it relates to whether or not we should -- we can collect on it. Most of my 20 pause is about -- was about whether or not we should have collected it, and then focused 21 on, again, the quality and the specificity of the reporting.

22 In my job, I strive to produce intelligence, whether it's raw and finished, that is of 23 high quality and helps to fill intelligence gaps. In looking at some of our raw intelligence, 24 it was unclear to what extent the information provided that level of specificity from time 25 to time.

1 Q Roughly, can you give me a sense of how many times this happened?

2 A I would say it was more the exception than the rule.

3 Q Okay. When it comes to raw social media collection, the raw intelligence 4 collection, speaking in your role as deputy under secretary for the enterprise or its 5 operation, do you think in -- generally, raw intelligence is collected with very little analysis
6 applied to it, correct? With social media -- and you are nodding in agreement yes?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Thank you.

9 Do you think that social media collection should require some sort of basic 10 analysis of the source; in other words, the number of followers, the person the subject
11 has, the number of likes that poster sees, the times it's been shared, whether it's clearly a 12 joke, whether it has a political motive?

13 A Absolutely.

14 Q Do you think I&A does that effectively?

15 A Yes, I believe that's what we call the reasonable belief standard in that our 16 collectors need to identify the advances in the national departmental mission. And that, 17 as you discussed throughout this interview, that as it relates to threats of violence, meets
18 at least one of the criteria associated with a known threat actor by a threat environment 19 or a true threat.

20 Q And does -- you don't think that -- like, so if someone has three followers 21 and, you know, there's a sense of the product -- or the item reaching threshold, you don't 22 think -- that's something that passes -- that's passable, that's -- that goes out, that's okay?

23 A It depends on the content. If it's an individual that we know is in the 24 proximity of a target for which they say they're going to threaten or kill and imply that 25 they have sufficient capability to do so, it doesn't matter how many followers they have.

1 Q When it comes to field intelligence reports, FIRs, right, does I&A take into 2 consideration that the sources of those FIRs are often law enforcement, State and local 3 law enforcement officers potentially, or they come from fusion centers where certainly 4 there's a heavy presence of State and local law enforcement?

5 A Yes, that's primarily the collection we do from a HUMINT capacity.

6 Q Do you suspect that such collection might be hypersensitive to police-related 7 issues?

8 A I think that with any intelligence, a source can be providing information to 9 influence and inform that's across the intelligence spectrum.

10 Q Is there any chance that there might be some sort of anchoring bias in such 11 kind of reporting, especially if you're dealing with reporting relate -- you know, coming 12 from police agencies about violence -- potential violence related to protests, policing, et 13 cetera?

14 A I think all of us have anchoring bias, and I think many sources have anchoring 15 bias, whether they work in law enforcement or a private sector, and approach how they 16 evaluate and share information based on that bias. I think that that's why it's 17 considered raw. And it's up to our analysts to determine the credibility and veracity of 18 that information provided by that source.

19 Q Going much broader, could you remind me again of your career before I&A?
20 You said you'd worked in the IC. Could you tell me which agencies, please?

21 A I spent time in the Defense Intelligence Agency, I supported some efforts in 22 the Central Intelligence Agency, and I worked at the Office of the Director of National 23 Intelligence.

24 Q Thank you.

25 Were you ever a special adviser to Vice President Pence?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And what did you do in that capacity, please?

3 A I served as his special adviser for Middle East and North Africa issues.

4 Q Thank you.

5 Going broader about I&A, could you tell us about how I&A changed under the 6 Trump administration? How did its structure change, for example?

7 A I was not at DHS for most of the administration. I came into DHS in the 8 summer of 2019, and at that time, there was no organizational change that I was aware 9 of. I'm aware that sometime several years earlier, that the organization has been 10 realigned into mission centers, but I don't have a lot of detail on the -- how that occurred.

11 Q Thank you.

12 What was I&A's morale like under the Trump administration?

13 A I can only speak to the morale during the time for which I spent at I&A, 14 which, again, starts back in the summer of 2019. And I would say when I came into I&A, 15 the morale was very low.

16 Q Why?

17 A I believe that the morale was heavily influenced by the nature and style of 18 the leadership at the top of the organization.

19 Q The top of I&A or DHS or both?

20 A I&A.

21 Q Could you talk to us about the leadership? Could you give us your 22 judgment of Dave Glawe as a leader and Brian Murphy, his deputy, as a leader?

23 A From my perspective only, I would say that Mr. Glawe at the time spent 24 most of his time out of the office, and so did not have a lot of connectivity with the 25 officers at our headquarters element. And Mr. Murphy was delegated most of the 1 responsibility to run the office day to day. Mr. Murphy had a very direct leadership style

2 and communications style, which often was perceived as toxic or hostile to many 3 employees.

4 Q Is it fair to characterize them as ineffective leaders?

5 A I would say that they were effective in some ways and ineffective in others.

6 Q Could you elaborate?

7 A I would say, from my perspective, that both leaders had a fairly good vision 8 for the organization in terms of where we should be headed and what we should be 9 prioritized on in many instances. I think where the deficiencies occurred were in the 10 execution and implementation of the priorities and goals.

11 Q How well versed were they in intelligence work?

12 A I believe both leaders spent time in the intelligence community. I believe 13 Mr. Murphy came from the FBI, and Mr. Glawe had also come from the FBI and had 14 served for a time in the Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

15 Q So as an intelligence professional, you're, I'm sure, keenly aware of IC
16 Directive 203?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Yeah. It establishes standards that promote a common ethic for achieving 19 analytic rigor and excellence. The top two of the five analytic standards it lays out 20 require analysts to be objective and independent of political consideration.

21 While you were at I&A under the Trump administration, can you -- do you think 22 that I&A lived up to these standards?

23 A Yes.

24 Q How hard was it to do so?

25 A It was difficult.

1 Q Could you please explain why?

2 A I think at the time the leadership that was in place applied pressure to the 3 organization and to the processes that oftentimes could have compromised our 4 objectivity, and supported other efforts to inject perspectives in the process that could 5 cause us to violate the IC standards and directives which we operate under.

6 Q Could you please describe such instances? Do you have specifics?

7 A In the summer of 2020, we were analyzing the threat associated with the 8 violence that was occurring in Portland. We didn't believe we had a level of specificity in 9 reporting to understand who the perpetrators were of that violence. And so we had a 10 lot of discussions about what -- how to characterize those actors. At one point, we had 11 agreed upon the definition that we refer to as violent opportunists, so individuals that we 12 know were seeking to commit violence, but it wasn't clear what their ideological 13 motivation was or if they had an ideological motivation.

14 However, as the summer progressed, there was a sense among the workforce that 15 leadership increasingly wanted us to refer the violence or attribute the violence to 16 individuals who adhere to what we consider to be the antifa ideology. And at one point
17 in the summer of the -- the Senior Officer Performing the Duties of the Under Secretary
18 issued guidance to our collectors to actually attribute the violence in Portland to antifa.

19 Q Why was that troubling? Just, I think I understand why it's troubling, but 20 could you very clearly tell me why that would be troubling to an intelligence professional 21 such as you?

22 A I believe that our collectors and our analysts should accurately describe the 23 information, particularly as it relates to raw intelligence as they see it and based on the 24 information they have available to them that is objective. And it's on those officers to 25 make those determinations, not the leaders.

1 Q Thank you.

2 Do you have any comments regarding the release of the Homeland Threat
3 Assessment, its delayed release, and I&A's diminished role, I believe, in the production of 4 the assessment?

5 A Do you have a specific question?

6 Q Yeah. Do you think that that was in the instances at which I&A leadership 7 or department leadership tried to guide intelligence analysis or shift it away from certain 8 perspectives?

9 A In my opinion, I think there was a difference of opinion between I&A leaders,
10 DHS leaders, and the workforce on the extent to which some of the incidents that 11 occurred over the summer were considered to be terrorist acts. And so there was a 12 difference of opinion, and that drove some of the decisionmaking in terms of how the 13 Homeland Threat Assessment was ultimately produced.

14 Q I know we're running on -- at the end of our time -- running up to the end of 15 our time, but I just wanted to ask how. How did it affect the release, the production, 16 the development of the Homeland Threat Assessment?

17 A It delayed the dissemination of the Homeland Threat Assessment, and it 18 changed the scope of the Homeland Threat Assessment, which initially started as 19 primarily an intelligence document and then later transitioned to a document that was 20 informed by intelligence, which included input from nonintelligence offices from across 21 the Department.

22 Q From your position at the time, why, why did that happen? What were the 23 motives behind those changes?

24 A I think there were probably a variety of reasons. One was that there are 25 certain aspects of the Department's mission which I&A doesn't cover, for example,

1 human trafficking, natural disasters, things that don't necessarily have a strong
2 intelligence nexus but they might have a law enforcement or departmental nexus. So
3 there is an interest in including more details on those aspects of the Department's 4 mission.

5 I also think that there was a difference in how we characterize the nature of the 6 events that took place over the summer and that the intelligence perspective was not as 7 inclusive as the Department wanted as it related to things that we would believe would 8 fall outside the purview of our mission.

9 Q Could you drill down on that last point, please?

10 A I think it was -- what it boiled down to was the definition of terrorism. The 11 definition of terrorism is very broad, and you can make an argument that anyone that 12 engages in violence with the intent to change a political outcome is a terrorist. And so I 13 think that we scope our interpretation of what we mean by terrorist a little bit differently.
14 And we would argue that there is probably, from our perspective and from the guidance
15 that we got from our lawyers, there used to be a level of, let's say, destruction and a level
16 of violence that raises to the level of a national security concern. And that is different 17 from, I think, the perspective of a law enforcement agency who is just focused on the very 18 tactical nature of the violence that's being perpetrated against them.

19 Q Was it a difference that was shared by your leadership?

20 A The difference in that they agreed with, I think, my perspective versus the 21 Department's perspective?

22 Q Which perspective did they agree with and why?

23 A Well, we went through, I think, at least two leaders during this timeframe.
24 So actually approached the dissemination of the Homeland Threat Assessment -- I believe
25 Mr. Maher was in the seat at the time. And so I think certainly he was of the mindset

1       that he was sticking with the intelligence assessment, but he recognized that the 2       Department wanted more input from the law enforcement side.

3               So there was a recognition, I think, by [REDACTED] that he wanted to stay where we
4       were at the intelligence. But we were open to incorporating input from nonintelligence
5       components, so long as the threat assessment was not considered an intelligence 6       document.

7               Q     This is going to be, thankfully, my last question, and I'll let you go for lunch.
8       Does that qualify as politicization of intelligence?

9               A     I think politicization, from my perspective, is when the actual intelligence is 10      changed as a result of a political consideration, and I don't believe our intelligence was 11      changed as a result of that. So I would not consider that politicization.

12      [REDACTED] Do you have anything else?

13      [REDACTED] Yes.

14              Ms. Dobitsch, one question, and then we promise you're off to lunch. And if we 15      have to start a little bit after 1 o'clock, that's fine on our end.

16              I want to clarify one of the answers that you gave when you said that you never 17      saw raw intelligence related to January 6th. And just so I understand it, and that's 18      because there wasn't an OSIR that was a final written product or a final product, period, 19      that got to your level. Is that right?

20              Ms. Dobitsch. To clarify, I don't know that I said never, but if I did, I'd like to 21      clarify that I rarely ever review raw intelligence before it is disseminated, across the 22      board, regardless of the direct topic, to include any reporting in the run-up to 6 January.
23      That falls with a couple layers below me in terms of review and dissemination.

24              I receive raw intelligence reporting more so as a customer who's reading it after 25      it's already been disseminated. So regardless of whether or not we would -- had

1 produced an OSIR related to 6 January, I likely would not have reviewed that before it was 2 disseminated.

3 [Reporter asked for clarification.]

4 Ms. Dobitsch. Open source intelligence report.

5 [REDACTED] O-S-I-R.

6 Ms. Dobitsch. Yes. Sorry. Acronym, OSIR, open source intelligence report.

7 And just to -- again, just clarify again -- clarify again, in the summer of 2020, circa 8 August timeframe through January 6th, I personally reviewed every OSIR that was 9 disseminated, except for those OSIRs that went through a process that was dictated in 10 the 30 October 2020 direction from [REDACTED].

11 BY [REDACTED]:

12 Q Right. I appreciate that. And because there was no OSIR related to 13 January 6th, it's logical that you didn't review any OSIR related to January 6th, right? My 14 question is --

15 A Yes. Yes, I did not review any OSIRs related to January 6th.

16 Q So unpacking that, what, if any, raw intelligence did you review that was 17 related to January 6th? Understanding there was no OSIR, is it fair to say then that you 18 didn't review any raw intelligence related to it?

19 A I -- to the best of my knowledge, I did not review any raw intelligence related 20 to January 6th --

21 Q Okay. So --

22 A -- prior to January 6th.

23 Q Okay. So my next question is: I&A had issued this report on 24 December 30th about the use of -- about reports on domestic violence extremism
25 landscape, right? So that was a product that came out from I&A. And then there was

1 nothing drafted productwise until, obviously, after January 6th.

2 Did you as an intelligence officer think -- you know, even though you're not seeing 3 it as not being pushed up to you from four levels down, did you have a moment where 4 just as a person knowing the significance of the joint session on January 6th, that 5 something was going to happen?

6 A Absolutely. And I think the documents show that I was actively pursuing 7 any information I could to help flesh out what I thought that threat might be.

8 Q So then my question is: When you say that there was a common
9 understanding within I&A and your Federal partners that there was a potential for 10 violence, where is the responsibility of I&A to push that message out?

11 A I think it is a responsibility. I think we believed that we had done that with 12 the 30 December report, and that the press reporting was so specific. I think even in the 13 political article, it talked about the storming of the Capitol. Our job is to provide 14 intelligence value and to go beyond reporting in the press. We did not have any 15 reporting that went beyond what the press was providing already.

16 Q But I think you agree that the December 30th, the value of it was not specific 17 to January 6th in any way. You said that earlier. It didn't mention January 6th at all.

18 A I think there was incredible value in that we highlighted that election-related 19 events and targets -- or election-related events were targets for violence. We did not 20 specify 6 January as one of those events.

21 Q But help me reconcile the common understanding that January 6th was a 22 problem and the lack of a warning by your organization about this, quote/unquote, 23 common understanding.

24 A The lack of a warning in part was because most of the activity that we had 25 seen was occurring just days to hours before. We participated in calls with National

1 Fusion Center Association, who communicated that they had access to this information.
2 We were told that our D.C. fusion center had access to this information which was being 3 distributed amongst the Capitol Police and the press. And so, again, that we believe, at 4 that time, that the warning was people were aware of the same concern that we had.
5 And that was articulated by our partners in multiple engagements in the run-up to 6
6 January.

7 Q But, Ms. Dobitsch, does the organization -- does I&A have the same
8 responsibility as the press? Isn't there more credibility when it comes from a 9 government agency versus what's being reported in press articles?

10 A Yes. Absolutely. A part of our job is to help provide context with what 11 we're seeing in the media.

12 Q So when you say we weren't seeing anything that wasn't reported in the 13 press, wouldn't there have still been value to put out something specific to January 6th 14 from an intelligence agency?

15 A Yeah, of course. Looking back on it, I think we agree that we wish we were 16 in a position to have put out a product warning of the potential threats associated with 17 January 6th.

18 Q Okay. And just as we ask all our witnesses, you know, kind of the lessons
19 learned from January 6th, and obviously you just mentioned one now, is there anything 20 else, you know, whether it's structurally that kind of my colleague hit on, or in terms of 21 the thresholds, or what do you think could be done better for the institution?

22 A Certainly, we concurred with the recommendations in the OIG report on 6
23 January. We've made quite a few changes in terms of the structure, the leadership, the 24 supervision, the processes and procedures, the direction, the guidance. Just about 25 everything we've done as it relates to our open source mission, we've strengthened from

1 top to bottom.

2 And so I think the lesson learned from I&A's perspective is that we need to make 3 sure that our intelligence resonates with the partners that are responsible for mitigating 4 the threat, and that we strive to provide accurate and timely and responsive information
5 to warn of threats.

6 Q Okay. Thank you for that.

7 [REDACTED] It's that time.

8 [REDACTED] Yes. Well, it's 12:40. Do you want to start later -- I think it's 9 just us coming to this briefing?

10 [REDACTED] It will also be --

11 [REDACTED] Oh, okay. Do you want to start at 1:15? Is that -- 1:15 is 12 okay on your side for your briefers?

13 [REDACTED] And what do you need for lunch and to take a break? It's been 14 a long morning.

15 [REDACTED] Yeah.

16 [REDACTED] So yeah.

17 Ms. Dobitsch. Okay. 1:15 works. Thank you.

18 [REDACTED] 1:15 works?

19 Ms. Dobitsch. 1:15 works. Yeah.

20 [REDACTED] Okay. Thank you, Ms. Dobitsch. And we're off the record.
21 Appreciate your time.

22 [REDACTED] And for the record, the transcribed interview stands in recess,
23 subject to the call of the chair. Thank you so much.
